GOODHUE SMITH DIES IN WACO FOLLOWING A LONG ILLNESS

MOTHER LEAVES BEDSIDE ONLY FEW HOURS BEFORE HIS DEATH.

Goodhue Smith, 29, native of Cameron and business man of Waco, died at his home in Waco Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock, following an illness of about one year.

His mother, Mrs. H. F. Smith of Cameron, had left his home Tuesday to return to Cameron, his condition at that time being somewhat improved and because of this improved condition his death came as a shock to his immediate family and friends.

Following news of his death Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Smith and children left for Waco. Oxsheer M. Smith, president of the Citizens National Bank, was in Austin at the time of his brother's death, and H. F. Smith, Jr., another brother was in Temple when the message came. All are now in Waco to be with the body which will be buried in Waco.

It had been arranged that Mr. Smith would move to Cameron with his wife, it being thought that the change would benefit his health. He was recently taken to the John Hopkins hospital in Baltimore for treatment. It is said the cause of his death was leakage of the heart.

Mr. Smith had been engaged in business in Waco for a number of years being the Ford automobile dealer there. He is survived by his widow and child; mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Smith, Sr., two brothers, O. M. and H. F. Smith, Jr., of Cameron, three sisters, Mrs. Rush A. Thomas, Miss Aetna Smith of Cameron, and Mrs. Vernon McIntyre of Marathon, Texas.

Rush A. Thomas left Cameron Thursday morning for Waco.

Dr. A. S. Epperson is in New Orleans this week attending a medical school where he is taking a special course. Dr. Epperson expects to return to Cameron next week when he has finished the course.

"President Harding Vetoes Bonus Bill"—News from Washington.

I remember the dawn of that cold rainy day,
Our first time over the top,
How for hours we crouched in the mud of the trench,
With our hearts going flip-flop.

And at last the word came—
and over we went,
Where the bullets whistled and spat;
And shrapnel screamed 'round like demons from hell,
But no one put a veto on that.

I remember a night in a thick, marshy wood,
When the Boche gave a chlorine gas ball;
We couldn't fight back, we were held in reserve—
Hand to stay there and take it, that's all.

And thicker and thicker the stinking fumes grew
While we lay there sprawling out flat,
Choking and cursing, but holding our ground;
And no one put a veto on that.

I remember the nights when with pick and spade
We scooped shallow graves for our dead;
No songs could be sung—
there were snipers around,
Not even a prayer could be said.

We had to work fast, for with coming of day,
The guns would start in to chat;
Without coffins or blankets we laid them away,
But no one put a veto on that.

O. D. BAKER WILL NOT TAKE PART IN ANTI-TICK MOVE

LEGISLATOR SIGNED PETITION
BUT IS NOT SPONSORING THE MOVEMENT.

The Herald was in error last week through improper information, in stating that O. D. Baker of Gause would represent the anti-tick forces in the coming protest before the Commissioners Court.

While Mr. Baker signed the petition and is opposed to the present method of handling the tick eradication work, he will not be identified with the fight in an active capacity. Mr. Baker brought the petition to Cameron and delivered it to Judge Jeff T. Kemp for other parties responsible for its circulation, but is not officially backing the petition.

In going over the operation of the law Mr. Baker gave as his opinion that the forth coming legislature will make changes in the law or make an effort to repeal it.

The effort to induce the court to rescind its action to continue the work, in the opinion of Mr. Baker will be very determined and will represent hundreds of men all over the county. It is expected that the anti-tick forces will be before the court at the next regular meeting at which time the protest will be lodged with the court. The court recently voted to discontinue but reconsidered its action after strong representations had been made by stockmen. Failure to get results from the money spent was advanced by the court as reasons why it voted to discontinue the work.

Failure to enforce the laws, is believed to be responsible for the conditions obtaining.

J. O. HUGHES WILL BE CHIEF CLERK

GIVEN APPOINTMENT UNDER
H. M. ROARK INCOMING
COUNTY CLERK.

J. O. Hughes, widely known citizen and educator of Milam county, and candidate for county superintendent in the July primaries, has been appointed as chief clerk in the office of County Clerk by H. M. Roark who will take office on January 1.

Mr. Hughes recently moved to Cameron purchasing the Gillon home. The people of Cameron welcome Mr. Hughes as a citizen and are pleased to note that he is to have so important a part in the administration of the county government.

Mr. Roark was nominated in the primary in a hotly contested race, being opposed by Will T. Yates for re-election and Miss Lillian Atkinson. Friends of Mr. Roark south of the Little River waged an active campaign in his behalf and the strength he drew from all sections of the county was gratifying to his friends.

Mr. Roark for many years was superintendent of the Thorndale schools and has been prominent in educational affairs of the county for a number of years. He has the best wishes of the people of the county for his coming term in office.

FORMER WACO WOMAN TO BE HEARD FROM SAN ANTONIO IN RADIO.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Lucy May Johnson Hotchkiss, noted actress and radio personality, will appear Monday night at 9:30 on radio program to be broadcasted by San Antonio Evening News giving personal impressions of passion Play history of plays and actors. The evening News is arranging weekly travelogue radio lectures by Mrs. Hotchkiss and will announce the dates later.

Mrs. Hotchkiss is well known in Cameron and the fact that she is to be heard in radio will be welcome news to her many friends here.

Judge Jeff T. Kemp returned from Marshall where he attended the Methodist Annual Conference which met in that place last week.

CAMERON AWARDED 1923 MEETING OF THE TEXAS METHODISTS

Cameron has been selected as the meeting place for the 1923 annual convention of the East Texas Conference of the Methodist church.

In the meeting held at Marshall this city won on the first ballot in competition with Lufkin and Orange and other points of consequence in the East Texas conference.

Rev. Ira F. Key and Judge Jeff T. Kemp representing the local church as delegates to the meeting presented the claims of Cameron and were aided by request made from Cameron including the Commercial Club and Mayor J. B. White on behalf of the city.

This is one of the most important meetings in the entire government of the church in Texas, comprising many districts of the East Texas counties with Houston the largest city.

Rev. Key who returned to Cameron Monday will be with the local church for another year and feels that the conference meeting here in 1923 is a compliment to his congregation who have erected a new church and wrought in many ways for the advancement of the church during his administration.

FINANCIERS HAVE OPTION ON PLANT OF LIGHT COMPANY

TEXAS CENTRAL COMPANY MAY TAKE OVER PROPERTY IN CAMERON.

The Texas Central Light and Power Company, a corporation now being formed with New York bankers as the principal owners have secured an option on the plant of the Cameron Water Power and Light Company.

This became known Saturday when the report of the option was reported in the press. The news story said that the company had arranged to take over this plant along with the plants at Mexia, Groesbeck and Marlin. This however, was erroneous, because the Cameron deal had gone no further than the securing of an option, but it is believed here that the deal will be consummated. It is said that the negotiations include the power as well as the water and ice plants of the company.

A representative of the company has been in Cameron for the past three weeks looking over the property. The fact that a deal was pending did not become generally known here until after the announcement in the press.

Efforts were being made Tuesday by local citizens to induce the local owners to retain the property because under local ownership the financial benefits to the community are much more pronounced.

No estimate as to the influence of these efforts could be gained as no

SERVICE APPEAL OF GREAT ORGANIZATION TO BE PLACED BEFORE THE PEOPLE.

T. F. Hardy, President of the Cameron State Bank, was elected Tuesday to lead the Salvation Army Service appeal in Milam County. Mr. Hardy was chosen at a meeting held in the Court House Tuesday by members of the advisory board of the county.

A representative of the Salvation Army was in Cameron to attend the meeting.

The Salvation Army's service appeal for Cameron will open in Milam County Dec. 1st. This county has been asked to contribute its share of the amount asked in Texas to enable the

REV. IRA F. KEY HAS BEEN RETURNED TO CAMERON

POPULAR METHODIST PASTOR
WILL SERVE LOCAL CHURCH
FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

Rev. Ira F. Key, pastor of the first Methodist church in Cameron, has been returned for another conference year to be pastor of the church.

When Rev. Key left last week for the conference at Marshall he had a petition from his congregation and many others in Cameron asking the conference to return him to this charge. His work here has been successful and under his leadership the church has made the greatest progress in its history, among the outstanding achievements the erection of a handsome $100,000 church adjoining the federal property.

Both as a pastor and citizen Rev. Key has endeared himself to the people of Cameron and his return here for another year is universally gratifying to the public.

The next conference year will see the church completed and in November of 1923 the East Texas conference will meet in the new church.

expression could be obtained from the owners as to the probable course they would take in the face of this local appeal.

The company to purchase this plant is also extensively engaged in franchises over the state but as yet has not fully completed its organization.

GAUSE ROAD BONDS ARE SOLD AT PAR

BUILDING OF IMPORTANT LINK IN HIGHWAY ASSURED BY SALE

The Gause road bonds have been sold at par and accrued interest according to O. D. Baker who was in Cameron Tuesday. Delegations from Gause, Milano, Rockdale, Thorndale, Taylor and Hearne will go before the State Highway Commission in a short time to make application for the State and Federal aid money to be applied on this road.

This road will traverse the eastern and southern line of the county to connect with the road being built from the Robertson county line to Thorndale and to be known as the B. V. D Highway.

This project connects up with the

VETERANS OF CIVIL WAR TO MEET HERE ON DECEMBER 14

WILL RE-ELECT COMMANDER AND PLAN FOR FUTURE OF LOCAL CAMP.

Confederate Veterans, wives of veterans and sons and daughters of veterans have been called to meet in the district court room on Thursday December 14 for the purpose of electing a commander of the Ben McCulloch Camp and to plan for the coming year in the camp.

Judge Ed. F. English, Commander of the Camp will retire from office on that date and the veterans will select their commander for the coming year.

It had been announced that the meeting would be held in the forenoon at ten o'clock but it developed that a number of ladies wished to attend and for their convenience the hour was changed to 3 p. m. Sons and daughters of the veterans are also invited to attend the meeting and to participate in the plans for the coming year.

But few remain of that gallant army which contributed the brightest pages in American military annals. These veterans have left imperishably the stamp of their lives and devotion on the pages of Southern history and so long as they live the south has inspiration from their example of devotion and courage born of the fire of this race of noble men.

Whatever assistance the citizenship is able to give in aiding the local camp to put over another successful year is at their command and it is hoped that the attendance will be large at this meeting.

BRAZOS BRIDGE TO BE ERECTED SOON

COURT TO ASK FOR BIDS FOR BUILDING OF STRUCTURE
ACROSS STREAM.

The Commissioners Court has announced that at its meeting on December 8 bids will be asked for the construction of the bridge across the Brazos river near the town of Gause connecting Milam and Robertson counties.

The construction of this bridge will cost $120,000. Of this amount $15,000 is to be paid by Robertson County and $15,000 by Milam county. The remaining $70,000 will be paid by the state and federal governments.

This bridge will be the impetus for the B. V. D. Highway through Gause, Milano, Rockdale and Thorndale, opening up a highway to Austin and San Antonio.

CAMERON MUTUAL AID INSURANCE ASSOCIATION PAYS ITS FIRST CLAIM.

The Cameron Mutual Insurance Association, a local mutual aid association of which Dr. T. J. Denson is President, has paid its first death claim of $258 to Mrs. Louise Bolf of Buckholts, on the death of her husband Frank Bolf.

At a meeting of the association Wednesday in the directors room of the First National Bank the board of H. M. Hefley, Robert McClane and J. B. White authorized the payment of the claim of $258. A check for this amount signed by Dr. Denson has been delivered to Mrs. Bolf by C. W. L. Schaeg, secretary and treasurer.

This is the first claim to have been paid by the Association which was organized in May of this year. The officers of the company are Dr. T. J. Denson, President; Penn Wolf, Vice-president; C. W. L. Schaeg, secretary and treasurer.

GOVERNOR WANTS CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

NEW AGE DEMANDS BETTER
INSTRUMENTS OF GOVERNMENT.

Brenham, Texas, Nov. 28.—Governor Neff addressed a large audience of citizens of Washington county here tonight. Hon. Buck Searcy presided and introduced the speaker.

This was the first of ten addresses which the Governor will make before the organization of the Thirty-eighth Legislature, and stressed the need of a new constitution and the calling of a convention for the purpose of drafting one by the incoming legislature.

He paid a glowing tribute to the 56 heroes of Texas who assembled in Old Washington, on the Brazos, in 1836 and drafted the first constitution, saying that the constitution they formulated the verdict of history pronounces a model of its kind.

This was in the days of the republic and it was the first written document known to civilization to abolish imprisonment for debt, create a homestead law, recognize woman as a legal entity with equal property rights with man. Passing on, he reviewed the constitution adopted in 1845 at the time that Texas ceased to be a republic and the twenty-eighth star glorified the proud folds of the American flag.

Three other constitutions came in the fullness of time, the third being adopted in 1866, which was succeeded by another in 1869. Then came the constitution of 1876, which as drafted by John H. Reagan and 79 of the representatives citizens of the State.

This was nearly 50 years ago, when only 176,000 boys and girls attended the schools of Texas, while today 1,300,000 answer roll call. He declared that Texans need a new constitution in order to perfect the educational system, to assist in the building of good roads, in the conservation of natural resources, in the handling of public utilities, in the building of factories, in working out the problems of transportation and declared with emphasis that the State in the matters of education and jurisprudence is hobbled and hamstrung by the limitations, inhibitions and prohibitions of a constitution written by sound statesmen who could not have dreamed of this mighty, complex, complicated civilization of ours.

"I am for a constitutional convention to write in the light and learning of this generation a new constitution for Texas," said the Governor. "If it is good then written the people will go to the polls and adopt it; if it is bad, the people will go to the polls and reject it."

Speaking of the constitution adopted in 1876, the speaker said, "Texas then had a population of only 800,000 inhabitants. Now we have 5,000,000. All West Texas, now rapidly becoming

The Junior Red Cross exists for the purpose of making good American citizens. This statement was made by an eminent authority in a recent answer to the question "What is the Junior Red Cross?" In the United States there are 5,000,000 members of Junior Red Crosses and in the Southwestern Division the membership of children in this organization numbers 434,576 and here is some of the work these children do.

They support work in Europe to children who are in need. They send Christmas boxes of goodies to children who do not have them. They make a shipment of garments abroad to the destitute children of war-crippled Europe. But this is not as interesting to America perhaps as the work which the Juniors do at home. One of the biggest problems in America today, according to experts is the tremendous amount of malnutrition found among the children of this country. One-third of the children in America are malnourished according to actual count. The Junior Red Cross through its school auxiliaries and growth classes is seeking to eliminate a large part of this malnutrition and has succeeded to a very gratifying extent.

The Junior Red Cross also is answering the question of how to eliminate individual, group, racial and international hatreds which exist among people today. The polyglot character of the personnel of the average American school gives an excellent field for work of this kind and foreign children as well as native born American learn what good citizenship is in their Junior Red Cross activities even more than they do in the patriotic exercises of their school room work. Loyal and serviceable citizenship, that absolute essential to a great democracy is being created in the breasts of these little foreign born Americans through the Junior Red Cross activities as it never could be otherwise.

One of the helps to this is the work the children are doing for the disabled ex-service men in hospitals, for the sick and crippled children who need help and cheer, in equipping playgrounds so that sad-eyed little children of the congested districts are taught the joy of a normal childhood. By learning to serve others in these and many other ways, lessons of community spirit and co-operation are taught the growing boys and girls of this country.

Another thing the Juniors are doing is assisting in the promotion of health in their communities by clean-up campaigns and other civic undertakings. On the whole, one of the most constructive pieces of work in the Southwestern Division, American Red Cross during the year in the opinion of those who have studied the situation, is that among children which has been carried on through the Junior divisions of Red Cross chapters and the school auxiliaries of Junior members.

RESTRICTION ADDED ON CATTLE DIPPING.

Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 27.—Requiring that all cattle shipped interstate through the Fort Worth market from sixty-one released counties of Texas shall be dipped one time before certified to by representatives of the Bureau of Animal Industry, for interstate shipment a new and drastic order of the bureau will go into effect Dec. 1. Notification of the passage of the new restriction was received by Dr. Harry Grafke, inspector in charge of the Bureau of Animal Industry in Texas, Monday.

Reports that numerous cases of tick infestation had been traced to the Fort Worth Stock Yards and from here to counties named in the regulation for release from general quarantine, have been received by the bureau it is said. Cattle from some of these counties also have been infected on the local stock yards.

The "added requirement," states that "on account of the difficulty of inspecting cattle recently exposed to infestation at shipping points or trails for ticks, no interstate certificates will be issued on cattle originating in such areas and offered for inspection at the Fort Worth Stock Yards until the cattle have been dipped one time under supervision of the Bureau of Animal Industry in accordance with regulations of the bureau."

As counties affected by the ruling become clean, and as the danger of re-infestation of other States is eliminated from those areas, the regulations will be modified or removed, according to Dr. Grafke.

Counties named which have been released from quarantine and are doing final clean-up work on tick eradication are: Anderson, Archer, Bandera, Bell, Blanco, Bosque, Burnet, Bowie, Brazos, Camp, Coleman, Comanche, Cooke, Coryell, Dallas, Denton, Edwards, Erath, Fall, Fannin, Franklin, Freestone, Grayson, Gregg, Hamilton, Harrison, Gillespie, Hill, Hood, Hopkins, Hunt, Jack, Johnson, Kaufman, Kendall, Kerr, Mibell, Lamar, Lampasas, Lee, Limestone, Llano, McLennan, Mills, Morris, Navarro, Palo Pinto, Parker, Rains, Real, Red River, San Saba, Smith, Stephens, Tarrant, Titus, Travis, Upshur, Van Zandt, Williamson and Woods.

HILLSBORO TRIAL BROUGHT TO HALT.

Hillsboro, Texas, Nov. 27.—The John Wade case, in which Wade is charged with murder, was halted just before the afternoon session of court by news from the jail that the defendant had attempted to cut his throat and was in a serious condition.

Wade was bleeding profusely. An old piece of tobacco can, flattened and formed in the shape of a half-moon, was found nearby. A gash three inches long had been cut in Wade's throat.

Wade was sent to a local sanitarum, where efforts were being made to save his life.

In Wade's cell was found a sheet of writing paper, on one side of which a note was written.

The witnesses in the case were excused until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning to await developments in John Wade's condition.

Efforts of the defense attorneys have been to establish a plea of insanity and self-defense, and much of the evidence has been with this end in view.

Rosa Wade, wife of John Wade, was killed in May, and two of John's brothers were indicted for the killing. Joe Wade was arrested, but not indicted.

Joe Wade was killed on the public square in Hillsboro Aug. 5 and John Wade was indicted for the killing.

and his case has been on trial since last Wednesday.

The Lynn Wade case was set for last Friday, but was reset for this morning on account of the John Wade trial.

The special venire in the Lynn Wade case was excused this morning until 9 o'clock Friday.

CITIZENS WANT PLANT TO BE LOCALLY OWNED.

Following the published report that the Texas Central Light and Power Company, a corporation controlled by New York bankers, had purchased the light plant in the City of Cameron, citizens here became interested and today are asking the local owners not to consummate the deal. On investigation it developed that the company had secured an option to buy the Cameron plant and that no deal has been closed. Citizens here believe it will be better if the public utilities are owned locally because of the financial benefits to the community. The local company has recently spent some $40,000 improving the plant.

Why Freight Rates Cannot Be Reduced Railroads Under Public Control

Transportation Charges Must Stay Up Until Costs Come Down, President Storey of the Santa Fe Explains

United States Senator Capper, through his various publications, has been demanding a reduction of freight rates; but his attitude on the general subject of railroads has not blinded him to the main facts about government control, which have been clearly presented in the following editorial from one of his papers, the Topeka Daily Capital:

"The railroad cannot fix its own rates and charges.

"It cannot name the wages it will pay.

"It cannot enter into combinations and deals.

"It cannot shut down when business goes to the bad.

"It cannot buy or sell a railroad system.

"It cannot make capitalistic profits and dividends.

"It cannot even determine how much capital it shall issue on its property, or issue any without previous approval of the public.

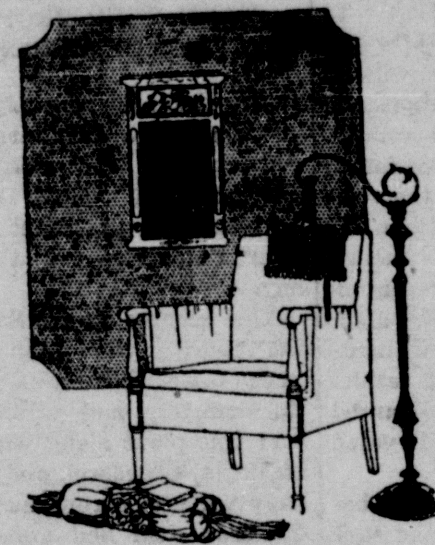

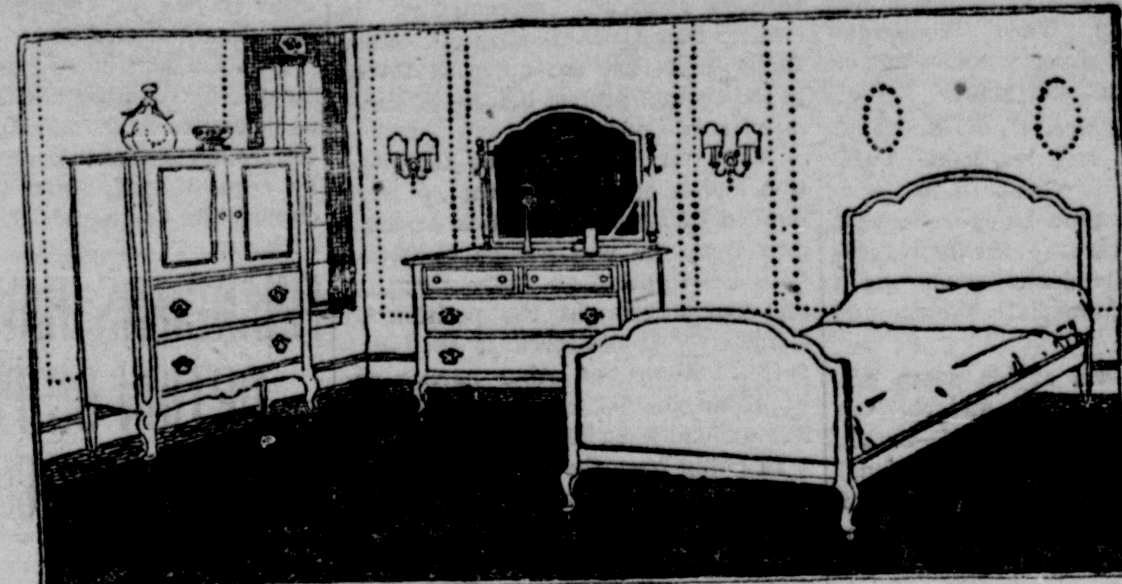

"It is, in fact, an agency of the public, controlled completely by the government."

The fact is, rates cannot be reduced unless costs are reduced. Costs cannot be reduced so long as the present scale of wages and the prices of fuel, materials and other supplies are maintained, and in these matters the hands of the Santa Fe are tied.

What is particularly needed at this time is better transportation service, more cars, locomotives, and other facilities necessary for moving the business, and the Santa Fe is doing everything in its power to provide these.

W. B. STOREY, President,

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway System.

The Wonderful Tree

By Christopher G. Hazard

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT STOOD in the corner of a rather needy room. It was festooned with strings of popcorn and cables of cranberries. Wispes of tissue paper and tinsel ornaments were out upon the branches, and small candles stood ready to illuminate the occasion. There were many invisible things upon the tree, too. The imaginations of the children had been as busy as their dreams. Family resources may be limited, but there are no bounds in the realms of Santa Claus and hope. In the magical Christmas time the clouds of poverty are all as gilded and beautiful as any sunset can furnish. Anything may happen then. Cinderella is as hopeful as her more favored sisters: not an urchin but has an expectant eye. So the Tanner Christmas tree was as beautiful as a picture and as full of presents as a picture could be.

But, however pictured by fancy and made of good wishes, the presents were all invisible. No one could see what was in the heads of the dreamers and the hearts of the anxious but needy providers. For weeks the mill had been closed, and now the family pocketbook was about empty. Father Tanner looked at the tree, could not see a gift on it, and shook his head. Mother Tanner was inclined to make the best of it.

Yes, the tree was one of the family. It had been the tree of last year's Christmas and the tree of the year before that. It was a tree that kept its evergreen habit and that did not seem to grow old. It was like a living tree, made to bring forth its fruit every year. It had been so good to them that they had named it Bounty. And now it stood there in the dark, all dressed up, but with nothing but blossoms, without any fruit. It could see the hurrying children running to their morning disappointment. It could hear their cries of surprise and chagrin. Silly Sam, more needy of amusement than the others, would look in vain for his expected go-cart; Sue would miss the two dress patterns for her big doll, her new hat and high chair for her little doll; Bill Tanner would not get his skates; Dick would still need a sled. It was anything but a merry tree.

But it was a wonderful tree. It had a power of making itself felt all over a neighborhood. It could summon Santa Claus by a kind of wireless message that went through walls and everything. It reached as far as the folks who were having a Christmas eve party two blocks away and made them think of Mr. Folsom's mill boss and Mrs. Folsom's laundry woman. They had been wishing for some new fun for their party that day and now it came into their heads to go over and be Santa for the Tanners. So the tree drew a very silent but very busy company to the Tanners' back door.

As the children had left directions for Santa on the table it was easy to find out what the tree was expected to do, so, presently, it did it. There was more, too, than orders for the wanted things; the merry-makers had brought with them enough to satisfy any reasonable tree; there were picture books, picture puzzles, games, a scissors grinder that could make the sparks fly, a train of cars that could go, a doll that could say "mama," and candy enough to go round. For Father and Mother Tanner there was a pocketbook with gold in it, and a note of good cheer that was better than the gold.

So the wonderful tree spent the rest of the night in trembling joy. It could not sleep for thinking of the friendly love that had provided such a nappy morning to come. And when the first of the morning light brought all the Tanners downstairs the tree fairly shook with pleasure, amid the wonder and the glee of that Christmas day.

As for the servants of Santa Claus, they had never had such a merry Christmas before. Their hearts were so warm that they did not mind the frost. They sang over the pleasure of giving pleasure and relief. They said they knew that Santa Claus had to live up North so that he could cool off after his warm interest in the happiness of others. They addressed him in verses that must have made him jollier than ever, calling him:

THE MAGIC MAN
There is a man who lives up north
All clad in robes and furs,
And every year he sallies forth
As love his going apurs.

He mitigates the winter's cold
That otherwise would freeze,
And keeps himself from growing old
By tending Christmas trees.

The children for his coming wait,
So do the old folks, too;
Unhappiness goes out the gate
When Santa comes to you.

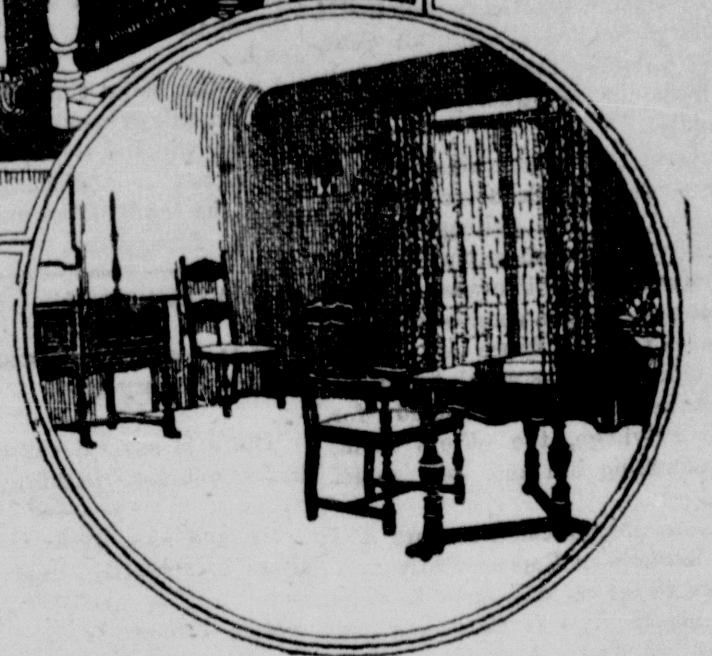

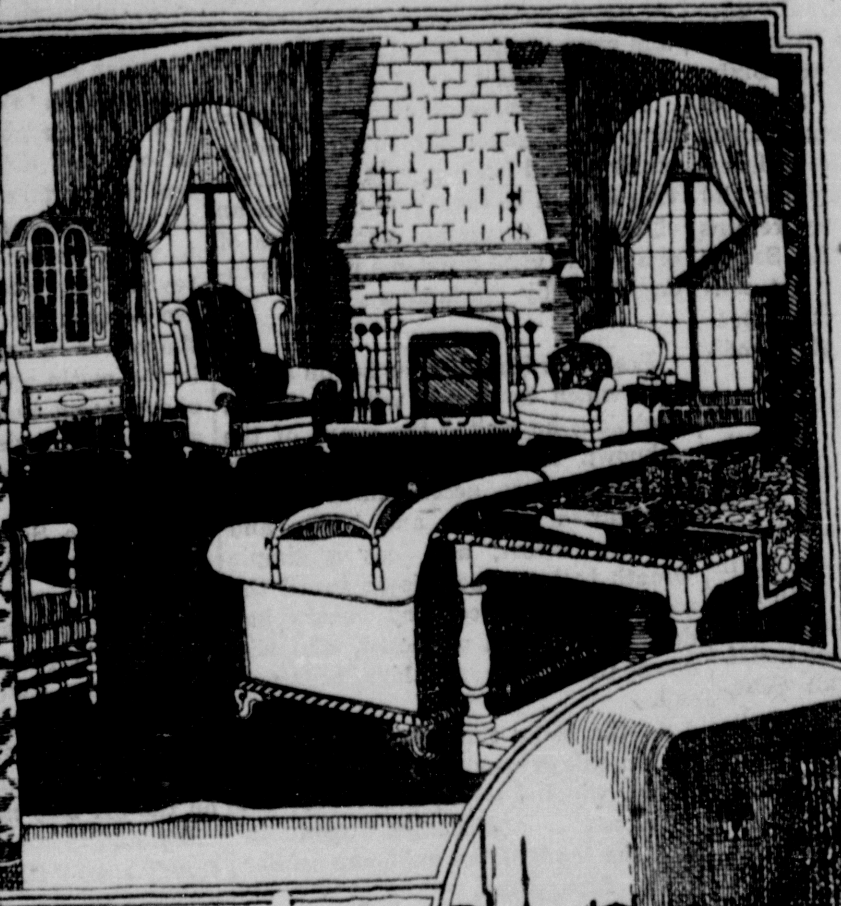

And their own presents never seemed
So large and good before.

TARIFF AND NEWBERRY WAR. INGS AGAINST SHIP SUBSIDY.

Eight Republican Senators who voted the profiteers' tariff bill into operation will be missing from their seats in the Senate when the Sixty-eighth Congress convenes. Seven of these eight were also among Truman Newberry's defenders. The political and economic evil that these men did lives after them. Newberry retains his place and power in the Senate and the Fordney-McCumber act continues to plague and exploit the people for the enrichment of the profiteers.

These Senators are not the only sufferers from the public resentment of Newberryism and the tricky tariff. Senator McCumber of North Dakota, whose name the bill bears, and Senator New of Indiana, fell in the primaries last summer. Both had previously voted for Newberry and both subsequently voted for the tariff. So, therefore, ten Republican Senators in all have forfeited their political lives since Newberry was "vindicated."

President Harding is about to subject these defeated Senators and their undefeated political colleagues to a test that will force them once more to elect between the public weal and private interest. He is soon to confront them with the ship house bill the last of the trilogy of laws which the Harding administration has enacted for Special Privilege, the others being the tax-shifting bill and the tariff bill.

Eighteen Republican Senators and all the Republican Representatives of the next Congress will have to face the people in 1924 if they seek reelection. If these Senators meantime vote away the public funds for ship bonuses or any other form of donation to private interests while taxes and the cost of living are as high as they are now while the prices of agricultural products are as low as they are now, they will find themselves and their party crushed in a political landslide without parallel.

It is hard to conceive how the Republican Senators who escaped defeat only because they were not candidates on November 7 can be induced even by President Harding or Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board or the prospective beneficiaries of the ship bonus bill to give their support to a measure which will provoke as much resentment as the tariff and the tax bill have caused.

If these surviving Republican Senators forget the elections of 1922 will they also fail to remember the elections of 1924?

AMERICANIZATION.

Not infrequently the proponent of a vigorous Americanization program is answered with "Oh, what's the use? A few foreigners, more or less, who don't understand us, won't hurt?"

There are plenty of patriotic and sentimental reasons why "a few more or less" will hurt and hurt badly. And there are as many practical reasons. Bolshevism, Red propaganda, Sovietism, radicalism of all kinds, are not spread in America by Americans, but by foreigners, which is unthinkable in peace times, there is no other plan save that of Americanization, which will keep this the America of Americans instead of a try-out station for wild communistic and anarchistic schemes.

An instance of the need of greater vigilance in Americanization work is at hand in the funny reports printed in German papers regarding the election. According to some of these, President Harding is about to resign, Governor Smith of New York is to become President, the prohibition laws were repealed, the entire Congress was turned out of office, and a new one installed.

If all German, French, Austrian, and Polish children in this country knew of their own knowledge, from proper Americanization education, the facts about this country, it is hardly possible that their parents and grandparents, in writing to Europe, could fail to give a true, rather than a false picture of political conditions in this country. It may be argued that it doesn't make any difference if Germany is told by her newspapers a set of untruths about our domestic elections, but that is not the point. Misrepresentation and misunderstanding of one country by another, interfere with trade, cause friction, and sometimes war, and prevent the spread of culture and education, and thus of civilization.

Not to realize that Americanization is as important to our foreign children and their parents, as education is both to them and to American children is to remain unconscious of one of the vital problems which is today faced by the land we love.

President Harding has begun a custom which he hopes will become a tradition; he visited the grave of the unknown soldier at Arlington on Armistice Day, accompanied by the Secretaries of War and Navy, and military escort, and left a simple wreath to let it be known to all the world that this country honors her dead, known and unknown, who laid down their lives at their country's call.

At the same time the Post Office put on sale a new fifty cent postage stamp, which has a picture of the Arlington Amphitheater upon it, with the tomb of the unknown soldier in the foreground.

WHAT ABOUT OUR LAWS?

Laws wuz first made to make people do rite and to pertect the weak agin the strong. Now I think tha is to much law in sum places and to little law in others. If laws are to pertect the weak agin the strong I think it is hi time we wuz makin some laws agin these K. K.s for it seems like tha are gittin mity strong Hit has got to whar you can't go eny whar with out runin in to a bunch of em it looks like tha, are about to take persegion of our cold drink stands, our holets and resterrants, barber shops, most of the stores, scools and it has got to whar we cant have a big metin or revival eny whar, but what you can sea a great bunch of em cume stickin tha selves in tryin to take a big dish in the metin and now behold tha are about to get charge of our court houses and the lagislater. Not but 2 or 3 places I no of but what are pestered with them. Tha say there is none of em in the Sinagogs or Catherlic church or in jail. Now then what are we to do. I say less pass sum laws. Hit ought to be agin the law for them to walk the pavements of eny incooperated town. And then tha should not be allowed to walk side or drive along the middle of the streats or public hiways. Should be made to keep on the off side next to the gutter or ditch, and then tha should be made to travel single file. We should never allow 2 or more to congregate together. It should be made a perrel offence for one of them to be found loitering around our eatin and drinkin places or dance hauls or places of amusements whar frea born lovers of "Pursenel liberty" gather in the exercise of thar "In-ale-un-able" rites We should vote a heavy tax on them to help support or pension many of our gud Sit i sens whom tha have put out of biznes or ruined by sum of these phool phinaticle laws tha have put buy us in the last few years. We can not now enjoy the fruits and juices of our own labor, and now but few people have enouf spirits left to ably conter for the rite, now sumthin has got to be did.

First it should be made a capital offense for one or more of them K Ks to Sit walk or stand in eny church in this land, there buy intimidatung the preacher and the membership. Second any body that looks and acts like tha do should be deported or sent back or disfranchised or intervened or not allowed to vote except in or near the equator or Some other very warm country.

Third: Tha "Stireth up the people" Tha are trying to interfere with sum of our pictur shows. Where people come to enjoy tha selves and sea picters according to the dictates of tha own consunch Tha dont want us to have theaters vawdyviles and etc. Where dreamy eyed youths and brite eyed lasses gather to witness experts render the latest sole styryng songs interspersed with a wonderful "exhibition" of ariel dancing and etc.

Tha dont even want our young boys and girls to meat at the dances where tha may trip the light fantastic according to tha own will and hard felt sentiment. evry body happy and injoying them selves dancing according to the "dictates of tha own consunch" and yet them dam K. K's want to meddle with how people should dance.

Oh!pursennel libberty cum back to me.

Oh! freadum why hast thou flown a way.

Cum back to me love from across the sea.

And let me basque in your smiles for an other day.

PROMINENT ROCKDALE CITIZEN DIES TUESDAY.

Cameron friends will regret to learn of the death of A. P. Perry, Jr., prominent citizen and druggist of Rockdale, who passed away Tuesday morning after an extended illness.

Mr. Perry, who was about 50 years of age, had been suffering from high blood pressure and various complications. He had been ill for some time.

Deceased was an alderman of Rockdale at the time of his death. He was considered one of Rockdale's most esteemed citizens.

He is survived by his widow and one son of thirteen years.

GAUSE ROAD BONDS ARE SOLD AT PAR.

(Continued from page one.) construction of a bridge across the Brazos near Gause which is being constructed at a cost of $120,000. Of this amount Milam county will pay $15,000

Miss Maudine and Perham Oliver of Cameron left Saturday for Port land, Texas, to visit their brother who is agent there for the San Antonio & Aransas Pass Railroad. They will be away about two weeks.

F. W. Brady of Razoo City, Mississippi was in Cameron last week to attend the funeral of his father, A. E. Brady, Sr., who died here following a short illness. F. W. Brady who is engaged in business in Yazoo City, a prosperous Mississippi town of about 12,000 inhabitants, had not visited in Cameron for about fifteen years and noted many changes in the city and many new faces among the inhabitants.

GOVERNOR WANTS CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

(Continued from page one.) the center of wealth and population, was so sparsely settled at that time that not even one delegate from that vast territory was sent to the convention that wrote the constitution under which West Texas now lives.

"At that time there was not a town in the state with a population exceeding 15,000. Now we have cities with more than 200,000 inhabitants. At that time there was not an oil well in Texas. Now we are producing and have been for some time, 10,000,000 barrels of oil a month, most of it going out of the state without paying proper tribute to the government on account of techical porvisions of our present constitution."

There is one survivor of the 80 Texans who made the constitution of 1876, and the Governor paid this graceful compliment to this connection link of the old and the new Texas, "As the lone representative of that memorable yathering somewhat as a connecting link between that glorious past and the still more glorious future, W. P. McLean of Fort Worth, crowned with more than four-score years of service nobly wrought for Texas."

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP BY THIS SULPHUR

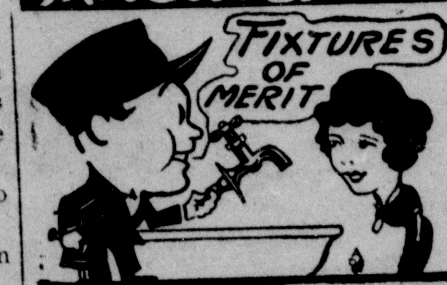

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

Dies Tuesday

ONE OF MILAM COUNTY'S EARLY SETTLERS BURIED WEDNESDAY.

Andrew Jackson Freeman, a pioneer citizen of Milam county and a member of that immortal band of early settlers who opened the way for modern progress and prosperity, died at his home at Maysfield Tuesday morning. Burial services were held at Little River church in the presence of many relatives and friends.

Deceased was a gallant soldier in the war between the States and was married shortly after Lee's surrender at Appomatox to Miss Mary Ann Butts. The pioneer couple came to Texas in the early 70's from near Montgomery, Ala., settling in Milam county. Later they moved to Leon county, but about six years ago returned to their former home in this county.

Mr. Freeman was a great student, being well read and thoroughly educated. He not only was a student of literature, but also well posted on the events of the day.

He is survived by his widow who lives at Maysfield, and by the following children: A. C. Freeman of Cameron, J. C. Freeman and W. C. Freeman of Maysfield; Mrs. Bertha Simpson, Arkansas; Mrs. Mamie Montgomery, Marsuez, Texas; Mrs. Joe Foster, Branchville.

The Holiday Spirit

CAN there be anyone who does not polish up his holiday spirit by reading Dickens' "Christmas Carol"? Is there anyone who does not give himself the fun of skimming down the slide with Bob Cratchit and laughing at his comforter, "three yards long, exclusive of the fringe," stream out behind him like the woolly tail of a kite? Is there anyone who does not creep up the cold staircase with Old Scrooge and shiver into his dismal room there to eat a small and lonely bowl of porridge with the crusty old gentleman? Is there anyone who does not love Tiny Tim and his wee, brave crutch? And Mrs. Cratchit, who can cook a goose to beat anything thus far accomplished in the history of mankind? And then, when we follow the Spirit of Christmas Past, can anyone fail to be moved by the forlorn little figure of Old Scrooge as a lad, left in loneliness at school during the holidays? Could anything be more pathetic? Has anyone such astounding control of his feet that he can prevent them from dancing at Mr. Fezziwig's party? And where is the impossible person who can suppress a cheer at that remarkable gentleman's performance with his legs? "If such there be, go, mark him well," for he has no pleasant places in his heart for these delightful humors. And then the damsel with the "lace tucker"! Dear me, what a chase she gave one interested young man in Blind Man's Buff! And how he paid her up for it in a certain shadowy corner of the room; how he did, indeed! But she liked it. Oh, yes, she liked it very much indeed, did the damsel with the lace tucker! Then to return to the Cratchit family, who is there to resist the simple toast of Tiny Tim, a toast of five words that encompasses the hope of all men: "GOD BLESS US, EVERY ONE!"

EX-SOLDIER GETS PENSION AND INSURANCE

Through more than two years of unwinding of official red tape and other efforts the Red Cross of Waco, Tex., has obtained compensation for permanent total disability and government insurance for a veteran of the World War. This soldier was wounded in a peculiar way. A piece of shrapnel which tore away the muscles of his back and injured his vertebrae also exploded his cartridge belt, thus inflicting an additional injury which required many operations and more than a year in the hospital, most of the time lying on his face. The operations were not successful, the shock and other contributing causes caused heart trouble, all of which have made him a permanent invalid. Through an error in his record, this soldier has been allotted only $27 a month and it required more than two years to correct the error and obtain for the man the compensation which was his due, as well as to obtain for him and his aged mother the insurance which also was coming to him.

FORD MAY ACQUIRE KATY RAILROAD

WHITENTON SAYS ROAD WILL GO TO ANYONE WITH THE PRICE

"The lines of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway may be bought by anyone with the price." H. M. Whitenton, assistant chief operating officer of the road, declared Thursday in reply to an announcement appearing in the Railway Review, stating that Henry Ford probably will be one of the bidders at the public auction sale Nov. 29, when the lines will be sold.

The properties of the Katy Road are to be sold to the highest bidder at public auction, in compliance with a decree signed by the Federal Judge at St. Louis on July 1, and a later decree signed July 3 by Federal Judge James C. Wilson, affecting the Texas properties of the company. The sale of the properties will formally dissolve the receivership of the road.

"We have had no intimation that Mr. Ford would be a bidder," Mr. Whitenton said. "Personally, I do not believe there is any foundation for that rumor, as I am sure that the New York financial interests which have started the reorganization of the road would not have undertaken the project unless they were sure the lines could be bought in by their agents."

J. W. Seligman & Co. of New York are the principal reorganizers of the road. Application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for issuance of new bonds, and other steps toward reorganization have already been taken and it has been announced that C. E. Shaff, receiver for the road, with headquarters at St. Louis, will be retained as president.

Although the sale of the Katy has been postponed several times, Mr. Whitenton said Thursday that the sale will be held Nov. 29, as announced, unless the present arrangements are upset. The sale of the main line will be held at Colbert, Ok., at 10 a. m., and the Texas lines will be sold at Denison at 3 p. m. A. B. Flanary of Dallas will serve as master of the sale at the Denison auction.

SHELTER FOR THE NIGHT

HE came to this world as a little child,
Who needed a mother's care,
While He took of a mother's sacrifice,
He heeded a mother's prayer;
No mansion rare offered home so fair
As her tender love's embrace,
Nor had costly bed for His tiny head,
Like those arms, fit resting-place.
And so must He ever enter in,
The Baby of Bethlehem,
Who had meagre heart never room for Him,
The Lord of a boundless realm;
And the King of Kings seeks no better things
Than the "child of thy love's" sure part,
Who cradles this Babe hath His throne-room made,
For His kingdom is thy heart.

POWER COMPANY TO LOCATE IN DALLAS.

Location of the headquarters of a second large power and light corporation in Dallas, serving more than a score of cities and towns, extending from Northwest Texas to Southeast Texas, is said to be virtually assured, following recent inspection and financial arrangements made by New York capitalists, with individual owners of a number of plants.

Official announcement of the formation of the new company, which is to be known as the Texas Central Light and Power Company, is awaiting final action of the New York financial interests, it is said. The entire deal is expected to be consummated within the next week, when application for a charter to operate under the Texas State laws will be made.

The location of the headquarters of the Texas Central Light and Power Company at Dallas will bring to the city the second large public utility corporation of more or less State-wide importance. Dallas is now the headquarters of the Texas Power and Light Company, and its subsidiary companies which serve virtually all of North and Central Texas.

The new corporation will have no connection with the Texas Power and Light Company, S. E. Calder, president of the latter organization, declared Saturday.

According to information received in Dallas, the new corporation has made arrangements whereby the properties of the Central Texas Ice and Light Company will be purchased for a consideration of approximately $1,000,000. The towns affected by this change are those served by the lines radiating out of Marlin, as well as the city of Marlin itself. N. D. Naman president of the Marlin company accompanied by George H. Carter, attorney, were in Dallas this week making arrangements for the transfer of the property.

Among the other properties which are said to be included in the Texas Central Light and Power Company's plan of control, are the Mexia, Groesbeck and Cameron systems. All of the stations will be connected by direct lines, which may be extended as far south as Houston, it is declared.

WHAT DO YOU AMOUNT TO?

Say, fellow lets take a little walk out to the edge of town and sit down in the November sunshine and ask ourselves a few questions. The idea is to find out just how much we amount to in the community; just how much we are doing or have done for the community in which we live.

Here is a list of questions we are going to ask ourselves:

Do I ever attend a school exhibition or take any interest in the public schools?

Do I ever go to church activities? Have I ever given my time to soliciting funds for any welfare or civic enterprises?

Do I call on my sick and shut-in fellow citizens?

Do I help in causes from which I derive no personal gain, or are all my acts prompted by selfish motives?

Do I devote more time to the pursuit of my own pleasures than I do to looking after my family's welfare?

Have I recently told a fairy story to a little child or spoken to a dirty-faced youngster on the village street?

How many genuinely charitable deeds have I performed since the first of the year?

Have I listened to slander, gossip and false accusations against my neighbors without saying a word in protest?

Do I live within my income and pay all my bills promptly?

There are just ten simple little questions. Answer them honestly and add up the sum total. Then see how much you amount to in the community, and how much you will be missed when they start you out to the cemetery?—Exchange.

THORNDALE LOSES SPLEN-DID FAMILY TO TEMPLE.

Mr. I. E. Bownds has resigned his position as bookkeeper and office man at the Thorndale Dry Goods and Grocery Company here and is planning to move his family to Temple where he has accepted a like position with the Best Furniture Company of that city. Mr. Bownds' resignation has been offered effective the last of the present week when his successor, Mr. L. R. Carter, of Elgin, is expected to arrive in Thorndale and take up the work where Mr. Bownds leaves it. Mr. Carter is a man of family and comes to our town with very high recommendations from Elgin, the people who know him best.

Mr. Bownds' is planning to leave Thorndale the last of the week for

Temple where the family will make their future home and where the many personal friends among the business men of Thorndale, to say nothing of the host of friends of this excellent family of people in this and adjoining communities will find new interest, the best wishes of all going with them to their new home at Temple.—Thorndale Champion.

The Left-Over Doll

By Christopher G. Hazard

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

WHAT was the left-over doll thinking about as she hung on the topmost twig of the Christmas tree all alone? Perhaps about all the other gifts that had been taken off by loving hands and given to the boys and girls. Maybe she was wondering whether there would be a Christmas tree every winter, bearing such nice fruit in such a strange season, if there had not been such a great gift from God as come on Jesus' birthday. More than all, however, she must have been asking herself why she was left over, why nobody wanted her, why the name that was pinned on her dress had not been called.

She was as good a doll as ever was made. Her eyes would open and shut, she always had a smile upon her face, her cheeks were rosy, she did not have a pug nose, and her dress was beautiful. When they put her on the tree she thought her name would be the very first one. She could hardly wait to hear it, and she wondered if they would never get through singing carols. Now it was all over and she wasn't wanted at all, not by anybody, not even by Sally Wiggins, who had no doll—not even one. She wasn't wanted! Oh, it was too bad, and her eyes tried to wink out two tears.

So they put her in the basket with the other unwanted things, and there the minister found her the next Sunday. She was lying there fast asleep, with a little carpet sweeper near her, and a box of candy close by, and a looking glass by her side. At her feet there was a spruce cone that had fallen off of the tree, and the bit of paper that had told who she was meant for, but her eyes were shut—she had retired from the world, no one wanted her.

There she was still when the minister came into the room the next Sunday morning. But now her eyes were wide open, only she wasn't looking at the presents in the basket. She was awake, but turned away, and still trying to squeeze out some tears because she was left over. And every time the minister took her up she would shut her eyes and go to sleep again, unless he held her up pretty straight, and then she seemed to be sad, and to be dreaming about being left over, even while she was awake.

She wasn't awake even on children's day until little baby Mower came in to get ready to be baptized, but as soon as he held her up she opened her eyes, and when she saw what a pleasant little boy he was she looked pleasant and hopeful again. Then he put her down, and she went to sleep and slept until Christmas came again!

With a new Christmas there she was upon a tree once more, and they were singing carols again and getting ready to call off the names. This time she was sure that somebody would want her, for she had been patient a whole year, and she hadn't made any fuss even though she had felt so sorry. Besides, this was the very best tree they had ever had, and so many had come to see it. It was full of gifts—not like the little tree that the minister saw in the corner of a house parlor—the mother said, "It's most all tree and paper, but it's a tree"—there were go-carts, and everything, and an Indian tomahawk to go with a boy's warwhoop, and some fringed pants to be put on with them, and a picture of a little girl in red, under a big umbrella, in a snowstorm, and "Ain't this a nice snowy day?" written under the picture, and lots of things, and the left-over doll, looking so friendly and nice—nicer than ever.

Well, they began to call the names, and almost the first thing somebody took down the left-over doll and gave her to Polly Rankin! Polly is just the dearest child I know. It was Polly who had said that she wished she had a doll to pet and bring up right. I am sure that Polly will do it. She will make the left-over doll feel very much wanted. She will teach her to be always cheerful. She will find her very obedient, and even nicer than she looks, and she will be kind to her. I hope that when the left-over doll is grown up she will be just like Polly!

"Santa Claus."

"Santa Claus" is a corruption which originated apparently in Flanders or possibly among the Dutch, of the name St. Nicholas, a saint noted for his love of children and his boundless charity. His "day" was perhaps December 8, originally, but since the displacement of Old Father Christmas, the British representation of the Christmas spirit, he is celebrated almost universally as the Christmas saint.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Austin, Texas, Nov. 29.—A program of more concerted co-operation between federal officials and local enforcement agencies is planned for the coming year, Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes advises Director David H. Morris of this state.

Section 11 of the enforcement act divides the responsibility between the government and the states. Practically all of the states have enacted legislation to this end and the various state agencies report increasing evidence of co-operation.

Commissioner Haynes says that every state, county and city has the initial responsibility of cleaning up its own conditions through locally selected officials, before the federal machinery should be expected to take charge. Hence, the necessity of close co-operation between the states and federal agencies.

Director David H. Morris is greatly pleased with the progress that has been made in enforcement in this state and is most optimistic in regards to the future, in view of the spirit of co-operation, in evidence practically everywhere. More and more is the public becoming convinced that the success of enforcement lies as much with the people themselves, as with the officers who are designated to enforce the law. In spite of obstacles and many complaints, prohibition is showing itself as a means of pronounced public betterment, of improved living conditions, and healthier, happier human beings. There is evidence everywhere of marked progress in the way of enforcement.

This is not the time to be impatient, nor discouraged, for the friends of the law are truly in action, as shown by reports which Commissioner Haynes has received from the various states, justifying the optimism which he entertains.

Reducing the source of supply, through concentration, in Commissioner Haynes' opinion, will aid materially in enforcement and also make for economy, for as he says, economy has been the watchword of the administration. Concentration of bonded whisky in a smaller number of bonded warehouses will result in the saving of at least $300,000 per annum. A saving of $250,000 has been effected through reductions secured in rental of office and storage space and the disposition of seized property. A further saving of $156,900 annually has been effected by the readjusting of salaries.

Referring to the cry that prohibition is a "failure," Commissioner Haynes says that in his judgment, one of the most remarkable successes ever attained in the enforcement of a new and drastic law has been recorded in the present status of enforcement of the National Prohibition Act.

A complete reorganization has been effected in the last fifteen months. Fifty-one Director's offices have been established in each state and Hawaii, Porto Rico and Alaska. These complete changes in the reorganization of the work have resulted in the elimination of duplication of work and a greater efficiency. Experienced men of unbounded integrity have been called into service. The Washington office of over 600 employees, and all the Field Forces have become enthused with the greatness of the task. Thirty-two hundred and one temporary and permanent appointments have been made during this fifteen-month period.

A new feature of the organization is the General Agents' Force operating independent of the Directors' force. To date this force has reported 3,231 cases, and recommended taxes in the amount of $24,168,824.62.

The Narcotic force, which also operates under Prohibition Unit, have also been reorganized. There has resulted such an increase of efficiency that with no large appropriation or appreciable increase in field force, there has been an increase of some sixty-five per cent in the number of violations reported in the period of one year, and an increase of one hundred per cent in the convictions secured.

A DESERVED VICTORY.

In explaining the Democratic victory of Nov. 7 and highly approving it, the Republican Boston Transcript editorially says, among other things: "The best part about the wiggling which the people have given at the polls in many parts of the country to the party in power is that the wiggling was well deserved. The party in power has neglected its opportunity, paltered in the face of grave and pressing problems played fast and loose with the veterans of the Great War, goose-stepped before organized bands of noisy minorities, honey fangled the pacifists, enacted a tariff bill that, as we have repeatedly said, is 'a disgrace to the Republican party and a menace to the Nation,' insulted the intelligence and inflamed the passion of the electorate in many parts of the country by appointments to office that are indefensible on any score—for example E. Mont Reilly as governor of Porto Rico and a whole tribe of political swindlers south of the Mason-Dixon line.

"Instead of leadership in the lower house of Congress the Republicans have set up an oligarchy consisting of Mondell of Wyoming, Madden of Illinois, Kelley of Michigan, and Anthony of Kansas—the worst of the lot. Instead of resisting the impudent and insolent manner in which this oligarchy has invaded the constitutional premises of the Executive, the Executive has in too many instances, saluted before the invaders. In the place of 'one man government' at the executive end of the Avenue, the party in power has given the country a taste of misgovernment at both ends by a congressional oligarchy as unfit to administer as it was to legislate."

Christmas Violets

By Mary Graham Bonner

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

HAROLD had been told by his mother that big cities were full of designing women. Harold did not know whether his mother was right or not. But he did know that in his city boarding house there was one of the dearest little girls who had ever lived.

Harold was not selfish. He was far from being a miser. His idea of a miser was a chap he had known in his home town. He had never spent any money which he could possibly avoid spending. He always ate with his friends and rarely paid for a meal. He was always out of cigarettes and so smoked his friends' cigarettes.

He had made a good living and never failed to talk of his poverty.

He had been accused of worshipping money and he had replied: "Not a bit of it. I have great respect for money. That is the difference."

Harold despised that kind of a person. And yet, perhaps, wouldn't the "dearest little girl" think he was mean? He had never given her anything and he had lived at the boarding house for six months now. Did she think he was mean? That was what bothered him. She had told him of a person she had known whom she considered a miser, and she had told him of a joke upon this "miser." For he had bargained with a little shop dealer and had obtained an article marked a dollar for fifty cents, and then had walked down the street a little farther on and had seen the same article in another window for twenty-five cents. And finally he had seen it in a ten-cent store for a dime—well, he had almost considered life useless, while everyone else had rejoiced that it had been a good one on the "miser."

One of the reasons that made him feel that she thought, perhaps, he was mean was because she knew others who were generous. Or, at least, one other.

Every Saturday she had received flowers. She had taken a card out of the box as they had sat at the boarding house table at breakfast. The other boarders teased her about her admirer and she seemed to enjoy it. Only he felt uncomfortable and could say nothing.

And Helen, whom he called to himself the dearest little girl, had been receiving these flowers for quite a few weeks now.

Finally he could stand it no longer. His mother needn't tell him anything more about the city's designing women. He was not going to lose the dearest little girl, if there was yet a chance, because of his mother's warnings to keep to himself.

And, besides, Christmas was coming, and Christmas was a time of year when everyone felt happy. He was going to make a tremendous fight to be happy!

And he sent her violets, beautiful deep purple violets, with a pink rose in the center.

Never had he seen her so happy as she was over his violets. How differently she acted about him than about the others. And then he asked her if she would take a walk with him. So far, they had had all their talks in the boarding house.

"I wonder," he said, "if you'd think it was awfully sudden if I made a little suggestion? I was thinking how nice a ring would look on that left hand of yours—as a Christmas present—and an engagement present, if I may be so bold, and if you've not already promised yourself to the other fellow? Or, maybe you could learn to like me better."

"What other fellow?" Helen asked.

"The one who has been sending you flowers all along."

"Oh," Helen said, "I'll have to tell you the truth. I sent them to myself. You were so shy, you seemed to like me and yet couldn't go about telling me or asking me out, and I thought maybe I'd make you curious or jealous or something."

"And you've cared for me all along as I have for you?" he queried.

She nodded. And then he told her the warnings he had been given by his mother.

"I don't know but what's she's right," Helen said. "I made designs for you, she could truthfully say."

But neither of them thought of the past, only of the glorious future ahead.

And Helen wore more violets on Christmas day and a ring with a stone which sparkled so beautifully. And they had dinner by themselves—a real Christmas dinner, for it was not only Christmas day—it was their wedding day, too!

WANT RECRUITS.

The United States Marine Corps Recruiting Station at Waco, is in receipt of a letter from Recruiting Headquarters stating that there is a great shortage in the marine corps in the ranks of Trumpeters and drummers, and authorizes the station there to accept for enlistment in the marine corps young men of the ages of seventeen to eighteen years of age for training as trumpeters and drummers. However young men of this age must have the specific consent of their parents or legally appointed guardian in the event that their parents are dead, and the enlistment in this service is for a period of four years.

Young men entering the marine corps for this special training will be sent to the schools at either Mare Island, California or to Paris Island South Carolina, for training as Trumpeters or Drummers, which ever they may choose to take up.

In view of the fact that this particular line of work is very interesting, it should appeal to the young men of the REAL "Red-blooded He-Man" type of young Americans, especially so in this particular service.

The Marine Recruiting Officers at Waco will be glad to answer any and all questions regarding this, or any other subject regarding enlistments in the marine corps, and may be addressed Marine Recruiting Office, Post Office Building, Waco, Texas.

YOU CAN'T TRUST

CALOMEL AT ALL.

It's Quicksilver, Salivates, causes Rheumatism and Bone Decay.

The next dose of calomel you take may salivate you. It may shock your liver or start bone necrosis. Calomel is dangerous. It is mercury, quicksilver. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. (Adv)

THE PRODIGAL DAUGHTER

By
WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE

Copyright, 1922, by the Macmillan Co.

Folk like to pamper the prodigal son. Maybe no more than they'd order. But no one as yet has been able to get any real for his prodigal daughter. From "The Rhymed Reflections of Elder Twigg."

A FEW years ago the Beasley girl worked in the overall factory. She was a pretty girl then, and naturally the neighbors talked about her, for the people who live along Jersey Creek are really no better than they who live on Independence avenue, in spite of the theories that poverty and charity go together. So when she left the factory the women of the Jersey Creek neighborhood hinted that the foreman had been too polite to her. But if she had remained at the factory they would have given the same reason for her staying. After that, she went to the theater with young men who turned up their coat collars and wore their hands in their pockets in the fall and spring, in lieu of overcoats. During the summer following her discharge from the overall factory she became a park fiend.

When she gave up her counter in the cheap dry-goods store, she remained at home, apparently keeping house for her father. He worked in "the shops" somewhere over in "the bottoms," and came home tired and grimy at night, and went to bed early. He slept in the room off the kitchen, and his daughter slept in the front room. He did not know when she came in at night, and he did not think of caring to know. Her father paid no attention to the little brother and sister who teased the daughter at table about the young men who frequented the house. If the other members of the family had been plaguing the ten-year-old girl who led in the rillery, the father would have been equally heedless of their chatter. The eldest daughter made him very happy by simple tenderness, though, of course, he did not understand that his warmth for her and the longing which he felt all day to get home for supper, was happiness.

But, unconsciously, his daughter grew very necessary to him. He was not of the world that analyzes its emotions, yet he could not fail to see her beauty, nor to be proud of her for it; and when she was dressed to go out—and she went out early and often—his pride blinded him to the gaudiness of her clothes, her frowzy hair, and the shocking make-up on her pretty face. Probably his discernment was not keen enough to see these faults, even had he not been so fond of her. But other fathers who had daughters saw these things, and mothers of the neighborhood who had sons did not mention the Beasley girl in the family circle. It was only after Miss Beasley had joined a comedy company, organized to play the "White Slave" and "Only a Farmer's Daughter" through the West, that her name was mentioned at all freely by Jersey Creek's aristocracy, and then it was as if she were dead. And Mrs. Hinkley, who took care of the children and looked after the lonely old man, often said to inquiring women of the neighborhood, "It would break your heart to see Mr. Beasley—a-grievin' an' a-grievin' for that hussy; an' whinever he gets a letter from her he reads it at the supper table before them children wid that flourish you'd think—feh, feh, feh, I do wonder if he knows." And after some discussion she would sigh, "Well, it's not for me to tell him."

What a wonderful thing is absence. It is like the dark in its power to transform people and situations and the relations of things. Though she had grown up under his eyes, the old man and his daughter had scarcely spoken a serious word to each other. The father had never inquired what his daughter was or was not. She was only "her" in his thought. They were strangers, but when he began to forget her presence, he found himself continually thinking of things he would like to say to her. "Her" disappeared, and dreams altogether different from his former conception of her, took her place. He longed for her, and yearned to tell her the great love in his heart. Among the noisy wheels, he mumbled to himself, speeches that he wanted to make to her, and in the scrawled letter he sent her occasionally, he wrote some of these tender things.

One day she wrote that she was coming home for a vacation, and his heart was very glad. He read and re-read the letter, and droned it off at the supper table to Mrs. Hinkley and the children. As he read it, neither the hearers nor the reader realized how much feeling the writer had put into the matter-of-fact words, "I want to be home with you all again." These words were meant to tell a story of heartache and loneliness and despair, but they were commonplace and fell short. For poor people are as blunt in sensibility as the comfortably rich, and the suggestion to Mrs. Hinkley of the possibility of any human feeling in the Beasley girl's heart would have fallen on barren soil.

When the day for the girl's coming arrived, Mrs. Hinkley was gone from the Beasley home, but the old man had "laid off" a day from his work. He was joyful in the hope that he might say some of the tender things he had written, and then keep up the new happiness that had come to him, yet he feared that his daughter would be so far above him that she would not care for it. He put on his best suit of clothes, and sent the children away. The house was in conspicuous "company order"; he arranged things, himself, and a Sunday stiffness and quiet prevailed. He sat in the front room waiting for her. When he heard voices at the fence, he recognized that of his daughter, and his pulse quickened; but when he looked through the curtain and saw a stranger with her, his heart sank.

Father and daughter met at the door; he held out his hand to her and she passed in, followed by the stranger, while the father stood awkwardly. "Well, Allie"—and after a pause, "how are you?"

A smile inclosed the commonplace answer, and the old man continued in a high-keyed tone with the upward inflection, looking vacantly at the dapper stranger who had not been introduced, "I s'pose you've been gettin' to be such a grand lady—" He laughed nervously, and with conscious embarrassment. The daughter seated her guest, and the father, with a faint air of cheer, chirped, "Well, you're lookin' hale and hearty."

"Is there anything in the cupboard, pa?" asked the girl, as she took off her soiled gloves and threw her long, shabby cloak and her expensive, but betwisted hat upon the bed. "I am just dyin' for a bite; we didn't get any breakfast." The old man went to get something, and when he returned the stranger was gone. She did not taste what he had brought, but turned and threw her arms about his neck; there were tears in her eyes as she said, "Oh, 'pa—pa—ain't it good to be back again!"

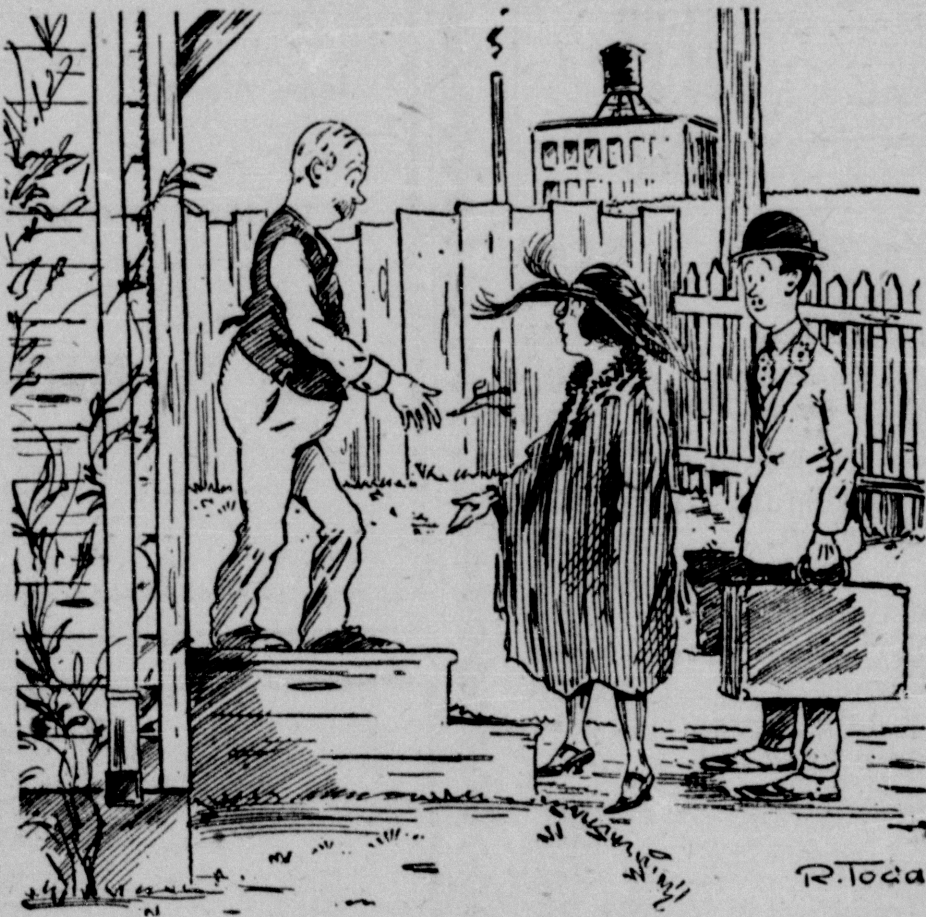

The father, summoning all his courage to break away from the common words of welcome began again in a quavering, nervous voice, "Well, Allie—I guess 'at mebbey you—you think someway that yer daddy has forgot you, but—Allie, I tell you, I—do you know, I think a whole lot of you." It was the best he could do, but he kissed her, and that was something—it was a great deal for both of them. Then they relaxed, and talked of the children, about whom she asked a great deal, and of the neighbors, about whom she asked nothing.

The "Comedy Company" had

ing she cried herself to sleep, brooding over her own personal sorrow. She was awakened by her father scraping the ashes from the kitchen stove, and her heart rose to her throat with great love for him. During that entire day the girl held her father in her mind as she went about her household duties. It seemed to her that her life with him was really worth living, and she was glad that since her return she had sent her old companions away. Yet her hand was raised against the world—her narrow world that is the epitome of the great narrow world—because it persecuted her and pointed its finger at the one being she loved. But the very fact that her father was set apart from his fellows because of her drew him close to her. And the night thoughts followed her all through the day, till she longed for his return. It was a good day in her life.

She heard his footsteps on the walk in front, and heard him coming around the house to the kitchen door. When he crossed the threshold she kissed him. The old man was a little abashed at the suddenness of it, but he was pleased. He took a chair and sat in the back yard leaning against the house. From there he talked with her through the open door. They had passed the usual questions of the day, when the old man said, "Allie, y' can't guess what Mrs. Hinkley said about you this evening." The daughter blanched as she stood in the doorway, and said nothing. It was dusk, and the old man did not notice her. "She said, sez she, 'Mr. Beasley, do you know that you are doin' wrong to keep Allie in the house there?' I says, 'Why so, Mrs. Hinkley?' and she wouldn't say nothin' but 'Well, y' are, that's all.' I s'pose Mrs. Hinkley thinks that 'cause you're grown to be so purty an'—an' all that—you're ashamed to stay here in Jersey with your old daddy." Strange things were crowding into the girl's mind—a fearful immastery in her heart. Then the temptation came with her father's question, "But you ain't ashamed to stay with your poor, honest ol' pap, are y', Allie?"

There was a short silence. As it lengthened into a distinct pause the man's heart was shot with fear. He felt remorse wrap him about—remorse and humiliation. He sprang lamely from the leaning chair to his failed, and she was at home to stay. Her absence had made both father and daughter understand how much each was to the other. "The little signs of endearment did not vanish as the days wore on. She smoothed his hair when she passed him, and he caught her dress and touched her simply with his hand as she came near him at her work. So much was his heart wrapped up in her that he did not notice the absence of the neighbors from the house, and when he asked them to come, and laughingly upbraided them for their social carelessness, he accepted their explanations with no thought of their insincerity.

His pride in her knew no conventionality and no propriety. Once, when the boys in the shop were eating their noonday lunch in the shade of the building, he looked up from a piece of pie to say in a lull of the conversation, "You fellers may talk all you want to about your purty girls, but I bet I've got one at home 'at I beat all yours put together. Some o' you young fellers orto come out an' see her." And when the fellows winked at one another and set up a laugh, the old man laughed, too, and said, "That's what I said; and I didn't smile when I said it; she's the purtiest girl you ever saw—ef her dad does say so."

He told her that night how they had laughed, and how he had "stuck to his words and made them shut up," but she was bending over the stove in the dark corner, and he could not see the flash in her eyes, and the quick quiver of hate that curled the muscles of her upper lip. The old man and the children prattled on until she composed herself, and joined the family group.

That night she tossed in her bed and turned her feverish pillow a hundred times. She cursed the world, its people, and its social arrangement. She wanted to make people suffer. Her father's disgrace, and the thought that she could not defend him made her frantic. When it was nearly morning she cried herself to sleep, brooding over her own personal sorrow. She was awakened by her father scraping the ashes from the kitchen stove, and her heart rose to her throat with great love for him. During that entire day the girl held her father in her mind as she went about her household duties. It seemed to her that her life with him was really worth living, and she was glad that since her return she had sent her old companions away. Yet her hand was raised against the world—her narrow world that is the epitome of the great narrow world—because it persecuted her and pointed its finger at the one being she loved. But the very fact that her father was set apart from his fellows because of her drew him close to her. And the night thoughts followed her all through the day, till she longed for his return. It was a good day in her life.

She recovered quickly, and hastened to a sputtering pan which she pretended needed her attention. The old man touched her dress in his wonted way, as he passed her going toward the door. He hesitated, and seemed to have another protest upon his lips. The daughter felt that she could not keep her sorrow back if he spoke. The old man did not note the pathetic tremble in her voice as she cried to her little sister, playing at the door:

"Jen-nee, Jennie, o-o-h Jennie, you got cut me a switch; I got to tend to your pa. He's makin' me spoil this supper." She added in a firmer voice, "The very idee of our movin'."

And the old man, looking back with a smile, went into the twilight full of joy.

Lacked Press Agents.

The king ordered all the men to take the field. The chancellor tremblingly approached the throne and whispered something, but his majesty shook his head impatiently.

"Let the publicity end be taken care of by the women and children," ventured the chancellor, "will have all they can do to till the soil, operate the factories, keep the houses open, and so forth."

"Then let the publicity end take care of itself!" the king insisted stubbornly.

The result was about what you might expect. The war was fought with valor and brilliancy, but when it passed into history it did so with almost a total lack of anything like distinction.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Too Much Meat Hurts Kidneys

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you.

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up, and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure any one; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

FATHER AND SON TO SIT AS MEMBERS OF 38TH TEXAS LEGISLATURE.

BY MORAN DUNLAP

Austin, Texas, Nov. 22.—A father and his son will both sit as members of the lower house of the Thirty-Eighth Texas Legislature when it convenes at Austin the second week in January. This will be a brand new incident in Texas politics. So far as the records show a father and his son have never been members of the same house of the legislature at the same time.

In the recent general elections the house of Baker was victorious in two widely separated electoral districts. The father O. D. Baker of Gause, Milam County, was the successful candidate for representative in the sixty-fifth district, composed of Burleson Lee and Milam Counties, while his son O. L. Baker of Orange won the electoral honors in the Fifteenth District, comprising Jefferson and Orange counties.

The son, O. L. Baker, will enter public life for the first time when the next legislature convenes. His father, O. D. Baker, however, has already served a term as a member of the Thirty-Seventh session.

Both members of the Baker family have had long experience in the military service of their state. The father came to Texas from Alabama in 1866 and, he says, "as a lad pressed westward and helped to blaze the pathway of civilization." He served for several years as a Texas ranger under Major Jones and George Wythe Baylor and other company commanders who have helped to make the history of Texas. He fired the first shot in the "fence cutter war" of 1884-85, and was cited by Governor Ireland for bravery in the operations that resulted in the firm establishments of property rights in the state.

The younger Baker's military record is hardly less enviable. Enlisting in the National Guards as a private in 1910, he won promotion to first lieutenant while serving on the Mexican border in 1916. In the world war he went overseas as captain of Company M, 142d Infantry, Thirty-Sixth Division. He was wounded in action October 8, 1918, in the St. Etienne offensive, and was later awarded a French citation and the croix de guerre.

O. L. Baker was born at Beaumont February 15, 1888. His boyhood was spent at Uvalde and Beaumont. In 1910 he was married to Miss Kate Vanmeter of Caldwell. In June, 1914, he was admitted to the Texas bar, and since that date with the exception of three years spent in military service on the border and the world war, has resided at Orange, where he is a practicing attorney.

"I am a sort of link between the past and present," the father, O. D. Baker, said recently. "I was born in Roanoke, Randolph county, Alabama, and as a small boy came to Houston. In the early summer of 1867 our family left Houston to escape the yellow fever epidemic that swept the country that year, and went to Bryan in advance of the building of the Houston and Texas Central Railroad. I saw the first passenger train come into Bryan.

"Still as a lad I pressed westward At Bryan I learned to set type on the staff of the Appeal, the first newspaper established in Central Texas. From Bryan I passed over the old stage road of San Antonio and Uvalde in 1873, stopping a few days at Austin, where I witnessed the surrender of the sepot of power from the hands of carpet bag government of Edmund J. Davis to Richard Coke, who had been fairly and honestly elected by the Anglo-Saxon citizen-ship of Texas. At Uvalde I found a cluster of picket houses most of which were covered with brush and dirt, which composed the town. That region was the subject to periodical raids by Indians. Here I lived many years when I was not traveling and scouting.

"I set type on the first newspaper published west of San Antonio," concluded the elder Baker. "This newspaper was the Uvalde Empire, later changed to the Hesperian. In the Nueces canyon I served as minute man in the old Montell guards, commanded by Captain Wilkerson. I made several trips up the old Chisholm trail with cattle into Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas. Governor Ireland in a circular letter to all the companies of the frontier paid me the highest compliment ever bestowed upon a Texas ranger by his commander-in-chief for bravery in the "Fence Cutter War" of 1884-85. I fired the first shot in that war. In fact I have seen Texas in all its primal beauty, and I am thankful that I have lived to witness the splendid development that we see today."

In private life O. D. Baker is a writer of newspaper and magazine articles. He is editor of a fraternal publication and in the past has owned and edited two weekly newspapers.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

By Mary Graham Bonner

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

ELLEN had been feeling that there was no such thing in the world as a Christmas spirit.

During the summer, for example, she had taken a trip. Everyone seemed to enjoy it. Everyone seemed to be glad to get away from the world with its scandals and its spoilt civilization. That was what everyone said as they took the trip through the simple wilds, remote and picturesque and old.

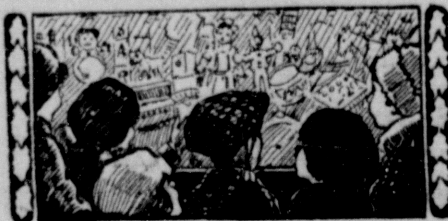

This seemed to be the life everyone longed for and then some one mentioned a scandal which had taken place nearby some months before.

With a dash everyone made for the scene—so they could tell the people back home that they had seen the locality of the scandal and Ellen had been disgusted. Was it such a sordid world after all?

Then she had taken some poor children to a big store to see the Christmas display and they had been refused admittance. The customers had objected to such crowds of children—they wanted to see the display themselves—why should poor children see the toys when they could only look? And all about the outside of the store were eager little faces peering into the windows and hoping that perhaps they could get in when the one who watched at the door was not looking. Once in a while one did and the children "cum outside waited for the news."

"What did you see? What did you see?" they shouted as the lucky one came out again.

Other stores had been different. Other stores had not had their rich customers complain. But it had saddened Ellen. And one of these very complainers had bought six copies of "The Christmas Carol" by Dickens to give away to friends. Ellen heard that later. It had not improved matters.

And on this same Christmas trip another she had met had said to her that these children had such shamefully poor coats and had reproved Ellen.

"I wish," the woman who had spoken so sharply to Ellen had said, "that they had some of the nice warm things belonging to my children," but when Ellen suggested that she should do something for these children she had gone off angrily.

And another person had patted her as she had seen her walking with these children and had said:

"A fine work, my dear."

And Ellen knew that the woman felt she had showed Christmas duty and Christmas service and Christmas love by making that speech.

But when Ellen began to see the trees which were sent to the city for Christmas she felt better. The smell of the trees gave her some of the Christmas spirit. Oh, yes, it was all right after all, she had been seeing only what was disagreeable and everything else had passed her by.

And then one day in the crowded section of the city she saw a small crippled newsboy go up to a Salvation army bucket and put in his donation. Helping others to have a Christmas dinner when he was none too sure of his own!

As she saw it she involuntarily smiled and a smile answered hers. A strange man was smiling at her.

Was some one going to be impertinent to her? Was the incident of the little boy only going to serve as an excuse for a man to smile at her?

But in another moment he was apologizing.

"I'm so sorry," he said. "I was trying to place you in my mind. I was so sure I knew you. And then I remembered that you were the picture of the girl on the cover of a magazine last Christmas which I saved all the year and so which is naturally very familiar to me. I am so sorry!"

And then Ellen laughed. For last year she had posed for one of her artist friends.

"I don't suppose you've any idea," the man continued, "how much good that picture did. I've heard so many speak of it and of the Christmas spirit it expressed. You fairly breathed it—then."

"And now I'm different?" she asked. "You don't look just as—just as Christmas," he faltered.

And Ellen felt ashamed. For she had been critical of others and in worrying about the world's shortcomings she had lost her own Christmas spirit. But it had been merely wandering—it was not utterly lost—and the man? The man who had found it again for her?

They became friends and then they became sweethearts and they made of their love a permanent thing and were married.

And he always called Ellen his beautiful Christmas picture. And Ellen was glad that he did. It kept constantly in mind the Christmas spirit that had once almost left her for good and all!

PRISON LOCATING YARTY AT BELTON

NEFF, KEELING AND ROBISON VIEW SITE OFFERED IN BELL COUNTY

Belton Texas, Nov. 23.—After several postponements of their visit here, the State prison relocating committee, composed of Governor Neff, Attorney General Keeling and Land Commissioner Robison, is here today. They were met by several business and professional men and shown over the site offered by Bell County for the location of the prison.

The land offered begins at the south corporate line of Belton and runs east south and west and contains from 7,000 to 10,000 acres. On the north it is bordered by Leon River and Nolan Creek on the south by the Salado River, while the Lampasas River runs through its center. It has an excellent shallow well water supply obtained at a depth of about 1,000 feet.

There is plenty of building stone and gravel on the land. The location is regarded as one of the most healthful in the country, is easily accessible to two railroads and has a railway road bed, ready for the laying of ties running through it.

Upon arrival here the board was escorted to the Park Hotel, where luncheon was served. Following this a tour of the proposed site was made. Neither the Governor or any member of the board would express their ideas on the proposed site. They said that nothing would likely be given out before they made their final report to the Legislature, which will convene in January. Several others sites are yet to be inspected by them.

BONUS BILL IS BANQUO'S GHOST FOR REPUBLICANS

Returns form states which on November 7 voted on propositions to provide bonuses to such of their citizens as served in the World War indicate that the next Republican Congress will again be confronted with the necessity of passing or defeating a soldiers' adjusted compensation bill.

Four states—Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma have recorded themselves in favor of additional compensation for soldiers. All but Oklahoma are normally Republican states. All together, they have 52 Representatives and eight senators in Congress. Most of these Congressmen are Republicans.

Radical and progressive Republican Congressmen elected in Western States on November 7 are already talking of restoring the excess profits taxes and the high surfaces as a means of raising revenues with which to pay soldier bonuses from the Federal Treasury. President Harding and the Republican Senators who have been opposing further compensation will have a hard time, it is expected in preventing a bonus bill from getting through next congress.

With the defeat of republicans Senators who fought the bonus in the present Congress, there is no doubt whether enough votes can be marshalled by the President to sustain his veto if he feels obliged once more to disapprove such a measure.

A TALK WITH A CAMERON MAN.

Mr. W. H. Ledbetter, horseshoer, of Cameron, E. First Street, tells his experience.

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Cameron man:

"Everybody knows that horseshoeing is hard on the back and kidneys, owing to the position and strain across the kidneys when holding a horse's foot" says Mr. Ledbetter. "My back became weak and my kidneys caused annoyance by the too frequent passages of the secretions, which were, at times, painful. It seemed as if the muscles of my back were tied in a knot and when I stooped, it was mighty painful to straighten. I took Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me quickly."

Nervous Break-Down

MRS. ANNIE LANGE, of R. F. D. 1, Burlington, Tex., writes as follows regarding her experience with Cardui: "Some time ago I had a nervous breakdown of some kind. I was very weak and so nervous. I had fainting spells and suffered a great deal, but more from the weak, trembly, no-account feeling than anything else. I knew I needed a tonic, and needed it badly. I began the use of Cardui to see if I couldn't get some strength, as I knew of other cases that had been helped by its use. I soon saw a great improvement, so I kept it up. I used seven bottles of Cardui, and can say the money was well spent, for I grew well and strong. Am now able to do all my housework and a great deal of work besides."

If you are weak, run-down, nervous and suffer from the ailments peculiar to women, it is very likely that Cardui will help you, in the way it helped Mrs. Lange and has helped thousands of others, during the past 40 years.

Ask for, and insist on, Cardui.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try this! Darkens beautifully and nobody can tell—Brings back its gloss and youthfulness

Common garden sage, brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not ful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.

WHITE-HOUSE MOTOR CO.

"Car maintenance is becoming a big consideration in the minds of car owners and prospective purchasers," says G. C. White of the White-House Motor Company.

"The rapid decline in the prices of many popular cars has helped bring maintenance into the spotlight. A great many can now afford to buy a car and they are now thinking more about the price of maintenance than about the price of the car itself.

"The cost of maintenance and the satisfaction of ownership will always depend upon the local dealer, for he is responsible for both—and nobody else can assume that responsibility. The best place in town to get parts or service for any car should be from the dealer who sells the car. That it isn't always the case does not make the statement any less true. It's up to the local dealer to have more facilities for service and to render service more efficiently and economically than anybody else on that particular car.

And this is the reason why a lot of people are picking out dealers instead of cars when they go shopping for an automobile today."

CHADWICK NAMED TO LEAD IN SALE
CHRISTMAS SEALS.

County Superintendent Jim F. Chadwick has been elected to chairmanship of the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal sale for the Holidays in Milam county.

Mr. Chadwick was chosen to head the sales organization in the county at a meeting held last Friday afternoon in the offices of Miss Stella Carter, county red cross nurse. Mrs. Zula L. Powell representing the Texas Health Association, was in Cameron to attend the meeting to see that the organization was perfected in the county.

The sale of these stamps is for the purpose of combating tuberculosis in this state and is carried out under the auspices of the Texas Public Health Association, 616 Littlefield Building Austin, Texas.

This work is carried on in conjunction with the work of the Red Cross in the counties but is not a part of the Red Cross organization, only profiting by the work accomplished in the counties by the Red Cross, both being mutually helpful and educational.

Campaigns for funds are now under way in the county for the Red Cross Tuberculosis Seal Sales and the Salvation Army.

The Lighted Candle
By Christopher G. Hazard

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I'M SORRY for anyone who has to be out tonight," said Mrs. Gentle, as she drew down the window shades and stirred the hearth fire, shutting the light in and the darkness out and sending a host of sparks up the chimney to scare away the storm. The disappointed wind howled in its rage and shook the house, the snow whirled about and heaped itself up, the cold tried to get in at every crack and crevice, but Nelly and her mother were as snug and safe as any Christmas eve could wish to find them. The Christmas tree looked all ready for the youngsters who were fast asleep upstairs and dreaming about it, with its bundles and gilded balls it fairly twinkled in the firelight, like the star of hope that guided those wise people that brought their gifts to the Christ Child long ago.

"Mother," said Nelly, "this is as comfy as it can be with father away on the wild sea, but I don't quite like to have the outside of the house all dark; I like to think of friendly lighthouse when it storms and of our house as a kindly guide in the darkness.

"Well," answered her mother, "suppose we do as they did in that lovely story we read the other day, and put a candle in the window to guide the Christ Child through the storm, and you can hang up another stocking, in case he should come."

So the four stockings by the chimney corner became five, a shade was lifted a little to give a glimpse of the pleasant room, and the lighted candle sent its beams out into the stormy night, looking for any little wanderer who might be astray. The cheering rays played with the snowflakes and they seemed to feel invited in as they pressed upon the window panes.

While they sat there listening and looking, there came a step on the stair and there was Tommy, in his nightgown and peeking through the partly opened door. Failing to see Santa Claus, he was about to flee up to his room again, but Nelly caught him and said that he must sing them a song first, as a punishment for his curiosity. Tommy had just learned a new song, so he was willing enough, and this was it:

Five little brothers set out together
To journey the lifelong day;
In a curious carriage, all made of leather,
They hurried away, away.
One big brother and three quite small,
One wee fellow, no size at all.

The carriage was dark and not too roomy.
They could not move about;
The five little brothers grew quite gloomy,
The wee one began to pout,
Till the biggest one whispered,
"What do you say?
Let's leave the carriage and run away."

So off they scampered, the five together,
Far away they sped;
When somebody found the carriage of leather,
Oh, my! How she shook her head!
"Twas her little boy's shoe; as everyone knows,
The five little brothers were five little toes."

Then, with a bow, Tommy was off to his dreams again.

The fire was burning low and so was the candle, so it was time to go upstairs and get out of Santa's way, but just as Nelly and her mother were about to do so there came a little face up against the window pane and they heard a small voice, so faint that they could not know what it was saying. It took Nelly but a moment to throw open the door and bring the little stranger in, but it was longer than that before they could cuddle him up into comfort and warm his cold little toes. It was not until Christmas morning that the searchers found out where the little boy had wandered to, and when they came to Mrs. Gentle's house he was happily busy in opening his stocking, and did not want to go home. After he had gone away, with his stocking under his arm and candy marks all over his face, Nelly said, "Mother, I think there is a good deal of truth in that story about guiding the Christ Child to your house with a lighted candle."

Nut Pudding.
One cupful soft bread crumbs, 2 cupfuls scalded milk, 1 tablespoonful shortening, 1 cupful chopped nuts, 1 cupful chopped seeded raisins, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, 2 egg yolks, 3/4 cupful sugar, juice and grated rind of 1 lemon, 2 stiffly beaten egg whites.

Mix bread crumbs, milk, shortening, nuts, salt, egg yolks, sugar, juice and rind of lemon. When well blended, add raisins and mix thoroughly then fold in whites of eggs; pour into buttered individual molds; bake 20 to 30 minutes. Serve hot with cream.

EVANS' Corner

This corner is devoted to business, politics and general news.

"Tom, you may read next." Tom, an overgrown boy two or three years older than the other children in his grade, rose awkwardly to his feet. The teacher turned to her visitor with a shrug which expressed her utter despair of Tom and his ability to read. She said in a whisper, "I think he's just plain dumb. Tom has been in this grade now for two years and he can't read a bit better now than when he came in. Listen to him." Tom was bent away over his book, peering at the point, studying out the words one by one. The teacher interrupted his hesitations with a sharp, "That will do, sit down!"

Then she turned to her visitor with resignation in her entire bearing, "What would you do with a hopeless boy like that?"

"Have his eyes examined," the answer came.

"Why I never thought of that!" gasped the teacher. And then with the thought came various recollections of Tom as he sat in his seat crushed down over his book, and of her sharp admonitions to sit up straight; of his utter failure to copy problems written on the board, of his inability to learn, which came not from the lack of trying but from what she had termed "dumbness."

The teacher visited Tom's mother and father. After considerable persuasion they at last consented to take the boy to a specialist. He was found to be suffering from astigmatism and near-sightedness which caused the words on the printed page to double and dance before his eyes. A pair of glasses corrected the difficulty and Tom returned to school now able to see as well as any other boy.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

Pernicious Teachings of the K K's

The principles for which Klansmen stand are not new principles. They are those that have been espoused by right thinking men of all ages. They are those principles over which wars have been waged and won and in support of which our forefathers fought and died and on which the greatness of America as a leader among nations absolutely depends.

No Fraternal order in America today, but depends for its very existence on these same abiding principles—with the possible exception of one, and it is claimed by some supporters of that order that these principles belong to it as well.

The Klan however, differs from other Fraternal Orders in that it is progressive and constructive and instead of having mere "Beliefs," it believes in making its ideals realities. While other men may be waiting for something to turn up by which their dreams of ideals may be realized, Klansmen believe in "Turning something up" themselves and rendering active assistance to those causes. Where others seek the same end "Desire," Klansmen "Do."

As proof that Klan principles are right is the fact that "big" men everywhere are flocking to its standard—men on whose word a critical public can depend and on whose sober judgment it is willing to rely. Doctors, Bankers, Judges, Congressmen, Lawyers, Governors and Preachers by the thousands are backing it. All of whom love their country with an undying devotion and for whose honor they would willingly give their lives. Is there any one who would be willing to claim that an order whose principles are endorsed by men in the front ranks in every state in the Union, could be standing for the wrong and unholy things that some say it is supporting? Is such a conclusion reasonable? It may be admitted that an order based on evil or even incorrect principles might have some little support, but when a cause has been received by Americans like this one has, with thousands joining its ranks daily, and its members loyal supporters of it, it must be taken for granted that it is an order of honorable purposes.

It should be the desire of every true American to see his country the foremost nation of the world. Not only that but it is the duty of every genuine American to be Actively Patriotic. Furthermore every time he recounts his country's noble achievements, every time he realizes what America is and what it means to him to be an American, he ought to feel a lump rising in his throat because of feelings that can not be expressed and from his heart should come a silent prayer of thankfulness that he has been allowed to be born an American. And then along in the same breath he ought to thank the God of all honorable Americans that there has arisen a hand of devoted, loyal, red-blooded Americans whose business it shall be to see to it that America and American institutions and ideals will be saved for Americans.

The Klan takes this means of thanking the public for the interest it has shown in this series of advertisements. There is much that might have been said but it was the purpose of these advertisements only, to drive home to thinking people some of the great truths so dear to Klansmen. We have meant no offense whatever to the right thinking man, but it is possible that violators of the law might have been offended. However we hope that even they may realize now, that the Klans first, last and always stand for the Right.

THE BACHELOR'S THANKSGIVING.

Oh pretty girls and plain girls,
And girls grave, gay and tender,
To you tonight with all my heart
My grateful thanks I render.
I thank you for each dear caress,
Each look, and gentle token,
I thank you for each pretty word
To me your lips have spoken.
I thank you for the pretty face;
That have enhanced your fate;
I thank you for the dainty boots
I have seen you wear, and lace.
I thank you for the charming way
In which you've shared my dinners;
I thank you that no moral Judge
Could ere have called us sinners;
I thank you for the lecture hard
Which some of you have read me;
But Oh! my dears, I thank you more
That none of you have wed me.

SIX O'CLOCK DINNER.

The pleasant suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ford was the scene of much mirth and joy last Friday evening. The occasion being a six o'clock dinner given in honor of the 23rd birthday of their son W. C. Ford Jr., to a number of his school boy friends.

This happy bunch of young boys gathered at the appointed time, were welcomed by the honor guest, assisted by his sister Miss Alice Ford, and were promptly seated to a real old-fashioned turkey dinner, served with all the accessories that go with it, in true southern style. Youth, health and comradeship helped to make this one of the most enjoyable gatherings of these schoolmates. Covers were laid for sixteen and never were young appetites more tickled with better cuisine. The table was covered with snow white linen, with "American Beauty" Rose centerpiece and was lighted with red and green candles on either side resting in cut glass holders. Plate favors were Thanksgiving designs with names of the guests. Mrs. Ford was ably assisted by her daughter Miss Alice Ford, and young son Melvin.

After partaking of this delicious repast there was a social hour of forty-two with cigars.

The following is the personnel of this pleasant occasion: Messrs John Henderson, W. D. Bigbee, Terry Wiley, Gaston Barmore, John Muse, Jack Adams, Walter Adams, Earle Burke, Joe Burke, Conn Moody, Albert Collins, Fontaine Flinn, Thompson Kemp, Vernon Roberts, L. J. Eperson and W. C. Ford, Jr.

MISS GILLIS PAYS A VISIT TO HER OLD HOME

Miss Bessie Gillis came in last Sunday morning from Knox County where she has held the position as Demonstration Agent for that county the past year. She was on her way to the Annual meeting of the District Demonstration Agents, which convenes this year at A & M.

Miss Bessie has a splendid position and is very much pleased over the results of her year's work. She has already met a number of her old Milan County friends who now live out in Knox County. She will probably return to her work after Thanksgiving, which will be spent with her brother and family. Judge and Mrs. Graham Gillis of this place.

ST. RITA'S CIRCLE.

St. Rita's circle met last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fritz Fahrendorf. There were eighteen members present.

The afternoon was spent in making plans for their Bazaar, which will be held Friday and Saturday, December 8th and 9th in the K. of C. hall. More definite plans of the Bazaar will be announced later.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Fahrendorf served delicious sandwiches and hot coffee. The next meeting of the circle will be at the home of Mrs. Joseph Michalka on December 14th.

LITTLE SEWING CLUB.

The little sewing club, which is composed of little Henriem Hefley, Buelah Collier, Madie Watson, Jane Tyson and Katherine McIntosh, will meet next Saturday with little Miss McIntosh, 803 N. Houston St.

There were a number of selections given on the piano. Songs and Edison music gave pleasure to a jolly bunch of sophomores who bade their hostess a late good-night, declaring that they had never spent so enjoyable time.

BRIDGE CLUB.

A party of unusual charm and attractiveness was given Friday afternoon when Mrs. F. Fahrendorf, 604 W. Main Street, entertained the Bridge Club.

The spacious reception suite was artistically decorated with large chrysanthemums, autumn leaves and ferns. Tables and score pads featured the season's color scheme.

After a number of interesting games high score was a tie between Mrs. John Watson and Miss Aetna Smith, both of whom received a beautiful corsage bouquet of large chrysanthemums and ferns.

The hostess served a delicious repast, which consisted of deviled crabs in individual sea shells, potato chips, cheese balls, bread and butter sandwiches, pineapple salad on lettuce leaf with mayonnaise and whipped cream coffee, apricot ice cream, individual cakes and salted almonds served in individual receptacles of maple leaves. Plate favors were corsages of very large chrysanthemums.

Beside the club members there were present Miss Maitland Osborne, of Chicago, house guest of Mrs. Paul Webb, Misses Gladys Watson and Anna Lorenz.

This gathering stands out as one of the most enjoyable on the Club calendar for this season.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY DINNER

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Batte, Sr. gave a dinner to John Summer Batte and Edwin Day at their country home. The occasion was to celebrate the 11th birthday of Summer Batte—their grandson—and Edwin Day who makes his home with them, and was 12 years old.

There were a number of playmates to accept the invitation to this splendid chicken dinner with all the accessories that go with same. Plate favors were little pink roses in glass holders filled with candy. Mrs. Batte was assisted in serving by Misses Mary Bell Batte, Abbie Batte, Baby Leila Batte and Dorcas Batte.

These young boys spent the afternoon on the farm and engaged in fun and frolic that pleased the small boy; departing at a late hour expressing themselves as having spent one day as the average boy delights to.

THANKSGIVING DINNER.

The Peter Produce Company of Cameron is giving the Manager and entire force of the Southwestern Company a turkey dinner at the "Bigbee House," Thursday, Nov. 30th, at 12:30 P. M.

This is the second annual dinner to be given by this firm to the Southwestern Bell Company, and will be much enjoyed by all the employees.

BAPTIST AUXILIARY

Circle No. 1 met with Mrs. Jim Coleman for Mission Study with Mrs. O. L. Kidd as leader. There were 9 members present. They also had with them Mrs. A. N. Green who is President of the four circles.

Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. W. L. Shires and made garments for the children in Buckner's Orphan Home. There were 13 present.

Circle No. 3 met with Mrs. L. L. Blaylock for Mission Study.

Circle No. 4 did not have a meeting.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY.

All circles of the Presbyterian Auxiliary met at the church last Monday afternoon for a business session. The discussion of Home Mission Work was led by Mrs. H. R. McFayden. The month of November has been given to Home Missions, and the report was most satisfactory.

EASTERN STAR MEETING.

The Eastern Star Chapter held its monthly meeting last Tuesday with a goodly number present.

Mrs. Martha Shepherd, P. W. M. read her report of the Fortieth Annual session of the Grand Chapter of O. E. S. which convened in Dallas Oct. 24, 25, 26. She was the delegate from the local chapter here. Her report was interesting and instructive and was much enjoyed by all who heard her.

JUNIOR CLASS PARTY

Last Friday evening the Junior class of Yoe Hi School was given a class party at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Authur Baskin.

A cordial welcome was given each Junior upon entering the reception suite, which was attractively decorated with ferns, flowers and autumn leaves.

Forty-two was one of the diversions of the evening, and was much enjoyed by a number of guests. Games of various kinds were indulged in, marshmallows toasted, fortunes told and musical numbers were rendered.

Miss Isla Reid, supervisor of the Junior class and teacher of latin in Yoe Hi school conducted this class party and was charmingly assisted by Miss Annie Lou Baskin. Sandwiches, hot chocolate, cake and apples were served.

These "jolly Juniors" spent a most delightful evening together with their much loved supervisor.

THANKSGIVING.

Some folks I ween upon this earth
Who never think of thanks,
Who raise their voice in ceaseless mirth

From pleasure's reckless ranks.
Some live a life of selfish aim
Thoughtless of God or man
Pursuing still the Goddess Fame
As their sole life work plan.
How fruitless are such efforts here
That soon must fade away
We thank Thee for this Day each year

That we may gladly say—
Our thanks dear Lord for everything
That life has brought our way;
That we can talk and laugh and sing
And give Thee thanks each day
We thank the Lord on this glad day
For all the light that Thou hast given

To brighten up life's dim pathway
To reach the heights for which we've striven.

We thank Thee for each kindly thought
That came into our seeking mind

We thank Thee for each pleasure brought
By friends who've been so good and kind.

We thank Thee for the fragrant air
And for the golden bright sunshine.

We thank Thee for the power of prayer
That lifts our souls to heights divine.

Ouch! My Back! Rub Lumbago Pain Away

Rub Backache away with small trial bottle of old "St. Jacobs Oil."

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!

---So They Pooled Their Christmas Money and Bought a Chevrolet for the Family

MOTHER and Dad were figuring up the Christmas list for the family. Gifts for the four children totaled quite a sum. Also Dad mentally added quite a present for Mother. Then he got an idea.

"Do you know, Mother," he said, that this family will spend enough to make the first payment on a car? You folks have been wanting a car for a long while now. Let's put it up to the family."

So they did, and everybody confessed. Christmas savings secretly built up all year joined the fund. It was more than enough. So the whole family decided to make the whole family the finest Christmas gift of all—a brand new Chevrolet.

Just figure up your Christmas bills. Then think of anything if you can that equals a fine new Chevrolet for that much money.

FIRE HAZARDS OF HOLIDAYS NAMED BY W. S. ENGLISH

PRECAUTIONS SHOULD BE TAKEN DURING CHRISTMAS TO AVOID FIRES.

State Fire Marshal S. W. English has mailed to all Fire Marshals throughout the State instructions concerning fire hazards, particularly those prevalent during the Holidays and asks that due precautions be taken.

George Richards, fire marshal in Cameron has received the following instructions and asks that they be observed:

By reason of the fuel situation it may be expected that in many localities various extraordinary methods of heating will be employed for protection against the extreme cold weather that is now at hand. In as much as conditions thus created undoubtedly will result in practices carrying district fire dangers if not properly supervised, attention is being directed to the desirability of giving that matter careful consideration.

Early this year copies of an ordinance entitled "Construction of Chimneys" prepared and recommended by a committee of the foremost fire prevention engineers of the state, with the suggestion that a survey be made in every community with the view to determining what regulations of that nature were required.

Since the very beginning of the development of the resources of America defective chimneys and flues have been an outstanding cause of fire. Recent statistics of the National Board of Fire Underwriters show an annual loss of $12,359,157 from that source in the United States. It should not be necessary to dwell upon the importance of safe chimneys and flues, yet it is really astonishing how very few cities and towns have ever gotten right down to a business-like effort at providing safeguards in that connection. We again are taking the liberty to urge the value of regulations that not only will insure against needless casualties and property loss, but eliminate wear and tear on expensive fire apparatus and the danger of fast moving fire trucks answering useless alarms.

"Keep the Fire Demon away from your Christmas Tree."

"Use only Electric Lights and Non-Flammable Decorations."

"Keep Matches Away."

"Remove the Tree immediately after the Holidays."

These are the sensible and timely warnings issued by the National Fire Protection Association for the safety of life and property during the 1922 Christmas season. They are intended to apply alike in the store, the church, the school house and the home.

The indiscriminate use of fireworks is dangerous and should not be permitted. Watch the careless smoker, and further protect Christmas shoppers and stocks of merchandise by keeping fire dangers out of electrical and other displays. It is probably too much to expect that the week will pass without casualties or fire. But, the work of fire and accident prevention officers and organizations in the cities and towns of Texas in recent years has been most effective in turning public attention to safe and sane holiday celebrations, and like activity should carry us through this year with a further improved record.

DOES IT PAY TO WORRY ABOUT APPENDICITIS?

Can appendicitis be guarded against? Yes, by preventing intestinal infection. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel removing ALL foul, decaying matter which might start infection. EXCELLENT for gas on stomach or chronic constipation. It removes matter which you never thought was in your system and which nothing else can dislodge. One man reports it is unbelievable the awful impurities Adler-i-ka brought out. DEATH OF CHRISTINE GANDY.

Last Saturday morning, November 25th at 5:00 o'clock the sweet spirit of little Christine Gandy took its flight to the All-Wise One who gave it.

She had gotten up from a spell of dengue fever and had returned from school for a couple of days when she was stricken down with a severe pain in her head. All that medical aid could do for her was done; she grew suddenly worse and suffered much until death relieved her body and sent the pure soul home to the God who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

Little Christine was a Fourth Grade pupil in school. Her little playmates evinced the love they bore for her by rallying around the cold silent form as it lay in her pure white casket. She was born September 10, 1912, and gladdened the home of her mother, Mrs. Harvey Gandy, little brothers and little sisters just ten years.

Funeral services were held at her mother's home, Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. R. C. White of the First Baptist Church. Interment in Oak Hill Cemetery.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful, and were tenderly laid on her grave by her schoolmates who attended the funeral in a body.

The Herald joins in sympathy with the loved ones and a host of friends who mourn the loss of this dear, sweet little girl.

CHRISTINE

Christine-Angels named her;

And they took the light

Of the laughing stars and framed her

In a smile of white:

And they took the light of gloomy

Midnight, and eyes of bloomy

Monshine, and they brought her to me,

In the solemn night.

In a solemn night of September,

When my heart of gloom

Blossomed up to greet the comer

Like a rose in bloom:

All forebodings that distressed me

I forgot as joy caressed me.

Only spake the little lisper

In the Angel-tongue;

Yet I, listening, heard the whisper-

"Songs are only sung

Here below that they may grieve

you-

Tales but told you to deceive you-

So must Christine leave you

While her love is young."

Then God smiled and it was morning

Matchless and supreme

Heaven's glory seemed adorning

Earth with its esteem:

Every heart but ours seemed-gifted

With the voice of prayer, and lifted

When our Christine drifted

From me like a dream.

REV. I. F. KEY RETURNS

TO CAMERON CHARGE

Rev. Ira F. Key returned last Monday night from Marshall Texas, where he attended the Methodist Annual Conference.

The congregation of the Methodist Church and his many friends are more than delighted to have him and his family returned to this Charge for another year. Also glad to welcome Rev. C. T. Talley back as Presiding Elder for the Marlin District.

The Annual Conference will meet in Cameron in 1923. This will bring some four or five hundred preachers and delegates to our city, as the Texas Conference is the largest in the state and takes in several large cities. The methodist people hope to have their new church building completed and paid for by that date, and, if so, they will dedicate it during this session of conference.

LIGHT-SIX SEDAN

$1550

Studebaker

Let Us Show You the Difference!

Vibration is destructive. It shortens the life of a car. It takes the pleasure out of riding because it causes rattles, squeaks and other irritating noises.

Vibration is particularly annoying in closed cars.

There is no perceptible period of vibration in the Studebaker Light-Six at any speed. This is due in part to Studebaker's method of machining the crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces. No other car, at anywhere near the price, follows this practice.

Lack of vibration and the quiet, smooth-running motor find quick approval from everyone who rides in the Light-Six Sedan.

And every driver is similarly enthusiastic over the way it throttles down to a walking gait in high gear—and the quick response that follows the touch of the accelerator.

Aside from its mechanical excellence, the Light-Six Sedan is notable for its sterling coach work. The substantial body, like the chassis, is built complete in Studebaker plants. Materials and workmanship are of highest grade.

Long, semi-elliptic springs and deep, restful, nine-inch cushions afford genuine comfort. Upholstery is of a rich, mohair velvet plush—good-looking and durable.

Today's price is the lowest at which the Light-Six Sedan has ever been sold.

The name Studebaker on your car is the best protection you can have!

GOVERNOR DECLARES IN BRENHAM SPEECH STATE NEEDS NEW CONSTITUTION

Brenham, Texas, Nov. 28.—Governor Pat M. Neff in an address here today advocating a constitutional convention said in part:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—In the best and wisest of books, it is stated that "No man seweth a piece of new cloth unto an old garment." The Great Teacher further illustrated his point by declaring that no wise man would put new wine into old leather bottles. In these words of truth and wisdom, I find a fitting text for the thoughts of this hour. The old-time mental slave, who, beneath the lash of a master, wove and spun and patched the garments, is gone; the use of the old-time leather bottle is gone. The passing of these age-worn customs illustrates the ever changing, the ever shifting affairs of men. Ancient standards are banished. New ideals lure us. The race slowly but surely upward climbs. Each generation has its problems and duties. The victories of those gone before are but stepping stones to wider and higher things.

For the message of the evening, I selected to come to this historic county in order that I might stand here, near the sacred, inspirational shrine, Old Washington on the Brazos, where the daring pioneers drafted and promulgated the first constitution for the people of Texas. The memory of these heroic, hardy men should nerve our arms and inspire our hearts to meet with dauntless courage and unflinching eyes the new duties of today. This brave band of fifty-six delegates on that far-off March day, 1836, wearing Indian shawls, blankets, and buckskins, gathered in a crude, one-room, store building, without ceiling, without windows, without doors, to give birth to and to write the Constitution of a New Republic. How enduring these Anglo-Saxon patriots and pioneers, who with axe and spade and rifle in hand had threaded the wilderness of Texas and erected their rude huts on her sunlit plains, built for mankind, the world well knows. The Constitution they formulated, the verdict of history pronounces a model of its kind. It blazed new trails. It was the first document in the world to abolish imprisonment for debt. It gave to mankind the Homestead Law, a policy and principle that early became a pattern for every state in the American Union. It was the first written document known to civilization that recognized woman as a legal entity with equal property rights with man, thus setting an example that finds happy fruitage in the newer and greater freedom of the woman of today. Great as was the work of the great men of that great day, their handiwork would not meet the changed conditions and pressing demands of this generation.

Civilization in this state moved on and our people, adjusting themselves to changed conditions, wrote another Constitution in 1845. In the convention for drafting it, we see the noble figure of Thomas J. Rusk presiding over its deliberations; the Constitution for a new state is drafted; the people gather at the ballot box and ratify it; Texas the Republic, voluntarily surrenders her independence, and Texas, the sovereign state, was born and the twenty-eighth star glorified the proud folds of the American Flag.

In the sweep and swing of the shifting events of peace and war, the people of our state adopted a new constitution in 1866, to be quickly succeeded by another in 1869. "The thoughts of men widen with the process of suns," and Texas history chronicled the story of the Constitution of 1876, and under this Constitution her people have since been living. For the eighty distinguished delegates who wrote that constitution, we have no word of criticism, but only words of praise. On the scroll of fame as the signers of that document, appears the name of John H. Reagan, who for fifty years gave his best to his country; John H. Brown, who made for this commonwealth undying history; Edward Burleson, a name linked forever with Texas annals; John L. Henry, who later adorned the Supreme bench of Texas; Kilgore and Moore; whose voices rang in the halls of our national Congress; Thomas Nugent, whose heart-beat was ever for the rank and file of men; William Cradford, who stood as a legal giant among Texas lawyers; S. L. Ross, gallant soldier and splendid Governor of Texas. These and all their illustrious, save one, have answered the final roll call. As the one representative of that memorable gathering, somewhat as a connecting link between that glorious past and a still more glorious future, stands W. P. McLean of Fort Worth, crowned with more than four score years of service nobly wrought for Texas.

With this brief backward-look into the constitutional life of Texas since the days of the Republic, I raise with you tonight the practical question whether it is wise for the people of Texas, in this progressive age and rapidly developing state to continue doing business under the limitations and inhibitions of a Constitution written nearly fifty years ago. Can we afford to sew the newly woven cloth of 1923 onto the old garments of 1876? Is it not reasonable to suppose that Texas has outgrown her swaddling clothes of a half century ago?

As new truths are disclosed as new discoveries are made, as new inventions are put forth, as civilization advances, the fundamental policies of the government must change to keep pace with the progress of the day. Statesmen of no generation, however wise, can interpret life and write a constitution for a progressive people fifty years in advance of their day. "Every constitution," wrote Thomas Jefferson, "naturally expires at the end of twenty years, and if it be enforced longer, it is an act of force and not of right."

The making of a constitution is but legislation by the people. Constitutions are not conferred by kings, emperors, or an autocratic few. The people alone have the right to ratify and adopt constitutions. Constitutions are but the collective will of the great body of a citizenship. They are the highest expression of modern, progressive democracy. The making of written constitutions originated among our people on this continent. Our example has traveled around the world. It is America's greatest contribution to political science.

The people have the inalienable right, from time to time, to pass on the fundamentals of their government. While our Constitution is silent as to this, the Constitutions of many states require a constitutional convention at regular specified intervals. New Hampshire requires a new convention every seven years, Iowa every ten years; Michigan every sixteen years; Maryland, Ohio, Oklahoma and New York, once in every twenty years. These are old States. Texas is a new country, larger than all these States combined, rapidly developing with different and diversified interests, and yet the people of Texas have had no opportunity to pass on the fundamentals of their government for nearly half a century.

A large majority of the States have adopted new constitutions since we wrote ours in 1876. Our neighboring States, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico have constitutions in keeping with modern civilization. Virginia, South Carolina, Michigan, New York, and other States have written new constitutions long since we adopted ours.

For forty years conservative thinkers have registered their dissatisfaction with our present Constitution. Richard Coke while Governor, declared it was a hindrance to our growth. Business men have found in its limitations, barriers to our material development. During all these years into every legislature has been poured, as into a hopper, suggested constitutional amendments. Every Legislature, except two, for forty-two years has submitted to the people constitutional amendments, varying from one to thirteen, aggregating in all, ninety-one amendments. Thirty-eight of this number were accepted. This was patch work. No one piece of cloth could be made to blend with or fit into the old garment. Texas is entitled to a brand new suit from hat to boots. The increased demand for change in our constitutional throu-shalt-nots is evidenced by the ever-increasing number of amendments each year introduced. Three years ago the legislature submitted thirteen amendments, only three of which were ratified by the voters. The voters of Texas have spent about half a million dollars holding elections to pass on constitutional amendments. At some of the elections not more than ten per cent of the voters cast their ballots. It is difficult to get the people to take an interest in the patchwork method of sewing a piece of new cloth here and there at haphazards onto an old garment. When these constitutional amendments are submitted the people do not know their relation to the other parts of the constitution and there being no information at hand concerning same, vote against them. Let big, brave, busy men rewrite the entire fundamental law of the State and give the people an opportunity to pass their judgment on it as a whole. If the convention does not write a good constitution, the people will not ratify it. You can't fool the people about a big proposition.

We need a new constitution in order that we may gridiron Texas with good roads. The biggest question of this hour is a question of transportation. The building and maintenance of enduring highways constitute the only solution to this vexing question. Constitutional stumbling-blocks now seriously hamper the construction in Texas of road building in a big, broad, enduring way.

Our entire judiciary, civil and criminal, mapped out a half century ago to meet a condition when we had but little litigation is now tardy, cumbersome, expensive and inefficient. To illustrate, eight years ago, I tried a case in the district court at Waco. I won. The case was appealed. It is still somewhere in the higher courts. It is fifty-fifty the case will be reversed. If it is, my client will probably be forced to watch the mill of justice grind another eight years. Learned attorneys declare that no efficient change can be made in the work of our courts under the provisions of our present constitution. In an effort to improve our courts, seven amendments have been submitted, of which two were adopted, the last being adopted more than thirty years ago.

We need a new constitution in order to perfect our educational system. When the present constitution was written, Texas, was spending annually less than a half million dollars while last year this state spent for this purpose over twenty-four million dollars. The year the constitution was adopted, we had in our public schools only one hundred and sixty thousand students, while now a million and three hundred thousand boys and girls answer to the roll call of the school house. At that time we had no University of Texas, no A. & M. College, no state normals, no College of Industrial Arts, with twenty thousand students thronging their halls. No set of men in 1876 could possibly have written a constitution forecasting and providing for in the best and most efficient manner, this vast and varied educational growth. While we are feeding this educational child expressive food it is not growing as fast or becoming as strong as it ought to on account of a fossilized constitution that has been hung around its neck. In a vain effort to better our educational life thirteen worthy amendments have, during recent years, been submitted, of which but seven were adopted.

In the preservation of our foodwaters, in the irrigation of our arid lands, in the protection of our overflow lands, in the preservation of our natural resources, in the handling of our public utilities, in the building of factories, all of which questions will soon be discussed in detail by me in a series of addresses, the State as in the matter of road building, jurisprudence, and education, is hobbled and hamstrung by the limitation, inhibition and prohibition of a constitution written by sound statesmen, fifty years ago, who could not then have anticipated this mighty, complicated civilization of ours. Their imagination could not have pictured the many problems that now knock for solution at the door of legislative consideration. In short, the big, husky boy of 1923 is now, and will be in the years to come, cramped in his youthful suit of 1876. Not only is it unwise to put new cloth onto old garments, but it is impossible to make a suit of clothes that will fit, for fifty years, a growing giant. The legislature has the authority to call a Constitutional Convention and provide for its organization. I am for a constitutional convention, thus called, to write, in the light and learning of this generation, a new constitution for Texas. If it is good when written, the people will go to the polls and adopt it; if bad, the people will reject it.

When our present constitution was written we had one lunatic asylum with a hundred or so inmates in it; now we have five asylums with more than seven thousand inmates. At that time we had no institutions for the feeble-minded, no epileptic colony, no tubercular sanatorium, no congregate homes, no varied eleemosynary institutions, all filled with wards of the public maintained and cared for last year at an expenditure of over two million dollars. This recital of the growth of eleemosynary institutions for the care and maintenance of the unfortunates of the State is but suggestive of the growth of the entire machinery of the government, which cannot now be made to fit into the provisions of the constitution written when these numerous institutions and departments of government were unknown.

What mighty changes have been wrought in this State, on this continent, and around the world, in the past half hundred years? The writers of our present constitution lived in a world far different from the world of today. Only by inspiration could they have foretold and provided, in their constitution, for the big problems of this big new day. All those who wrote it, except one, are no more. The youngest man who voted for it has now reached life's allotted span. Texas then had a population of only eight hundred thousand inhabitants. Now we have five million. All West Texas, now rapidly becoming the center of wealth and population, was so sparsely settled at that time that not even one delegate from that vast territory was sent to the convention that wrote the constitution under which West Texas now lives. At that time there was not a town in the State with a population exceeding fifteen thousand, now we have cities with more than two hundred thousand inhabitants. At that time there was not an oil well in Texas, now we are producing and have been for some time, ten million barrels of oil per month, most of it going out of the State without proper tribute to the government on account of technical provisions of our present constitution. At that time we did not have a mile of improved highway in Texas, now the transportation problems demand good highways and Texas is seriously handicapped in building and maintaining good roads on account of the inhibitions of a fifty year old constitution.

These pioneer constitutional builders were so circumstanced that the coming events of this day could not cast their shadows before them. Who can visualize Texas fifty years from now? The men who wrote our constitution never rode across Texas in a Pullman car or studied beneath an electric light; they never talked over a telephone or listened to a phonograph; they never used a typewriter or had their bank account balanced with an adding machine; they never rode in an automobile, an electric street car, or dreamed of an interurban. They knew that man could not make a flying machine, and they would have been turned out of church for heresy had they believed in wireless messages or contended that ice could be made in August. We are living in another age. This is another generation, and Texas has a higher and broader vision than she could possibly have had a half century ago. With Calilec we can still say, "the world do move" and Texas must keep pace with it. We stand with uncovered head in the presence of the matchless and marvelous achievements of science, of art, of discovery and advancements made in every line in the wide field of knowledge. Have we made in fifty years no progress in the science of government? Are we standing with our backs to the future, worshipping at deserted shrines? Let us with conviction and confidence and courage face the future. Let us unshackle Texas. Let us with eyes uplifted and with buoyant hope sing with Lowell:

"New occasions teach new duties;
Time makes ancient good uncouth;
They must upward still, and onward,
Who would keep abreast of truth."

BISHOP APPOINTS PASTORS IN REPORT TO MARSHALL CONFERENCE.

Marshall, Texas, Nov. 27.—Featuring the morning session of the Methodist conference being held here, Bishop John H. Moore shortly before noon today announced appointments of various pastors for the coming year.

Sessions were speeded up in an effort to close the conference on time after many delays in committee work and extraneous matters forced upon the meetings.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Roll call showed the following present: Officers: C. W. Lawrence, President; R. H. McIntosh, Vice-President; W. B. Skelton, Secretary.

Directors: J. W. Coleman, J. T. Parma, W. M. Cobb, C. R. Phillips, W. O. Triggs, C. W. Bradbury.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and upon motion adopted.

The subject of graveling the Jones Prairie Road from Boeckers corner to the graveled portion of the road was brought up and the club's responsibility in the matter discussed. The fact was brought out that some time in the near future there will probably be a county wide bond issue voted on for the purpose of filling in such gaps, improving the roads and canceling the district bonds with asked the Good Roads committee to county wide issue. The President confer with the people of the Jones Prairie community regarding the particular piece of road mentioned above and report back to the club.

C. W. Bradbury, chairman of the Membership and Entertainment committee offered the following names for membership in the club: R. H. Brewer, G. T. H. Meadows, and Mr. Preston. On motion duly seconded they were enrolled as members of the club.

In line with a recommendation of the Finance Committee at last regular meeting W. G. Gillis, chairman of a committee appointed for that purpose offered an amendment to the Constitution and By-laws of the club. On motion from W. M. Cobb seconded by W. O. Triggs the amendment was adopted as follows.

Resolved that section 6 of Article 4 be amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

The Board of Directors shall control the finances of the Club and no money shall be expended until authorized by a note of the Board and no expenditure of over $50.00 shall be made or contracted for until authorized by a majority vote of the members present at a regular meeting or called meeting of the Club. Provided that any expenditure or donation for purposes beyond the ordinary expenses of the Club shall be first submitted to the Finance Committee and reported upon favorably by them at the next Directors Meeting or regular Meeting as the case may be, except in case of an emergency in which event the Club may act upon such expenditure or donation at the Directors Meeting or Regular Meeting as the case may be when same is brought upon the suspension of this rule by a vote or two-thirds of the members present.

J. W. Coleman, chairman of a committee to raise funds with which to pay off note on the Refinery site reported the money raised and the note paid off and in the hands of the secretary. On motion from W. G. Gillis seconded by W. M. Cobb the committee was thanked for its splendid work.

W. O. Triggs of the committee to raise funds for the band reported further progress but more work to be done.

Mr. Perkins, football coach of the High School made a very interesting talk on athletics, telling of the importance of athletics in the development of a young person and bringing out the fact that with the present system of athletics in high schools the children most needing the benefits of athletics were not receiving them. He insisted that sooner or later a course of athletic training would be embraced in the curriculum of all up-to-date schools.

W. G. Gillis mentioned the fact that the local United Charities had no regular system of financing their organization and that if some system was not devised in the near future that the local organization would soon be no more. Upon motion duly seconded a committee of three was appointed by the president to meet with the ladies having charge of this work and to endeavor to formulate some systematic plan of financing the organization.

SALVATION ARMY.

The Salvation Army will present to the Citizens of Milam County and Cameron an appeal for funds with which to carry on its vital work next Tuesday, December 5th. Committees appointed by the Commercial Club, Lodges, Churches, American Legion, and other organizations will canvass the town soliciting funds and distributing buttons to the contributors. These committees have the endorsement of the organizations which they represent and of the Salvation Army, and it is hoped that they will succeed in raising a substantial sum to keep up this great unselfish work.

While most people are acquainted with the War time work of the Salvation Army, many are not acquainted with the Peace-time work; few people know that the "Army" is now doing a work vastly more important than it did in the war. A few of the things that it is doing include the maintenance of homes for working men and women, maternity homes, baby farms, and lodging houses for the derelicts of the cities, the relief of victims of the various disasters, as well as the well known mission work and street services that first made the Salvation Army famous. It is safe to say that no other organization touches the work of the Salvation Army; it has a field of its own that is left entirely to it; and its work in that field has been gloriously done.

Within the last few years the work of the Salvation Army has been felt more and more in the rural districts and the small towns. Young men and women going to the cities from the country find the "Army" always ready to steer them around the pitfalls of an unfamiliar life; and the maternity homes have become asylums for the poor wayward girl from the country and the small town, as well as from the city. There is no distinction made as to the origin of a person needing help.

A contribution to the Salvation Army is an investment in the future welfare of Cameron, Milam County, Texas, and the nation. The undersigned urge the citizens of our city and county to give freely to this noble cause.

Respectfully,

T. S. Henderson, Jr., Acting Chairman of the Advisory Board; T. F. Hardy, Director of the Campaign in Milam County; Roy Baskin, J. B. White, U. S. Hearrell, W. O. Triggs, W. G. Gillis, O. L. Kidd, Advisory Board Members; A. F. Mitchell, Commander American Legion; L. L. Blaylock, sheriff.

DRIVE IN COUNTY.

Salvation Army to continue and extend its great service.

The people of Cameron and those living in the remote sections of the county have heard of the wonderful work of this great humanity serving organization. It is the organization that extends a helping hand to the men and Women "who are down but never out."

The salvation Army has a mighty fine slogan in dealing with the needy and unfortunate. This organization believes in rendering help and asking questions afterwards.

Milam county is fully organized for the appeal which is backed and supported by the leading citizens of the state and community.

When the committee calls on you don't say "Well times have been hard" We all realize that, but the harder the times the greater the need of the Salvation Army.

Don't depend on "George" or the other fellow to give "Kick in" yourself. If everybody depended on the other fellow to give, the appeal would fail.

And if the Salvation Army depended on some other organization to help the needy and unfortunate, thousands of men and women would become human driftwood each year.

Let's put Cameron on the map by subscribing our quota one-hundred percent.

The appeal will continue from Dec. 1 to Dec. 8.

Miss Ruby Lingert, of Rockdale was a Cameron visitor to our city Sunday.

When the Seals
Come,
Buy Them

A LITTLE before Christmas, you will be offered some Christmas Seals. Keep them and use them on envelopes and packages. Send a check or money order to cover the small sum they cost.

When you do this, you help in the fight against tuberculosis. You help save human lives. Your help goes where help is most needed—to the house that is clouded with the threat of death.

When the Seals come, buy them.

MOTHER! MOVE
CHILD'S BOWELS

"California Fig Syrup" is Child's Best Laxative

Hurry mother! Even a cross, sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.
